No Such Easy Doom Profit Out of War? No O, Woman! Hard to Please About California

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by Star Co.

THE BRYAN-MONKEY-DARWIN trial in Tennessee will be a duel to the death, according to Mr. Bryan. He really believes that the preposterous little trial, based on a law to enforce ignorance, will mean the "doom of evolution or of Christianity."

GALILEO DISCOVERED that our earth is round and calls around the sun. He was compelled, on his knees, to deny, abjure and retract that statement. The Galileo incident didn't mean the doom of science or religion.

WHEN COLUMBUS went sailing over the ocean, good religious people believed that, of course, he would sail over the edge and then fall indefinitely. He didn't. His trip didn't doom science or religion.

SIR THOMAS MORE thought that the Catholic religion was the only real religion. Accused of denying that the King was the real head of the church, he had his head chopped off.

That didn't mean the doom of Catholicism or Protestantism. Both are stronger than they were then.

It would take more than Mr. Bryan, Mr. Darrow, a childishly silly monkey question and a jury of twelve men to doom science OR religion. Both will last a long time.

MR. BARUCH, who knows about war and how profits were made, being close to President Wilson all through the war, now gives $250,000 to be spent in finding a way "to take the profit out of war."

There ISN'T any way. So far as nations are concerned, profit is out of war already—the last war proved that. So far as individuals are concerned, there will

New Death Makes Club Toll 44

ENGINEERS MAKE NEW VISIT TO DEATH PIT IN HUNT FOR EVIDENCE

The death toll of the Pickwick Club disaster raised one to a total of forty-four, through the death of Max Mulmat, engineers hastened their reports today for submission to the Grand Jury.

It was expected that the Grand Jury would report late today to Superior Court its decisions and findings in connection with the Beach street horror.

Max Mulmat, young businessman of No. 247A Blue Hill avenue and living at No. 24 Homestead street, Roxbury, died early today at the City Hospital from injuries he received in the Pickwick collapse.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mulmat, and had planned to leave for Chicago on last Thursday. little more than twenty-four hours before he met his fatal injuries. He changed his date for his trip that he

Yankee Airmen to Fight Riffs in Morocco

Paris, July 9 (A.P.).—A Lafayette Escadrille for service in Morocco is being formed by American volunteers who saw service with the foreign legion during the war.

Two pilots who have already volunteered are: Graville A. Pollock, New Orleans, and Charles W. Kerwood, Philadelphia.

Pollock served with the British artillery the first two years of the war, then joined the Lafayette Escadrille. He later became a United States Army pilot.

GOVERNOR DECLARES EMPLOYES WILL LOSE JOBS IF THEY STRIKE

Governor Fuller today served notice upon the trustees of the Boston Elevated and the employes of that road that there must be no strike.

He declared that in the unlikely event of a strike, which seemed imminent twenty-four hours ago, he would remove all the trustees and would see to it that while he was Governor no man taking part in the walkout would ever be employed by the road again.

MRS. BLANKENBURG'S TESTIMONY HEARD

Mrs. Ida Manning Blankenburg, of Tulsa, Okla., took the witness stand in Suffolk Probate Court today to tell her own story in her fight to gain the Crabtree millions.

She claims she is the daughter of the late Lotta Crabtree, famous Boston stage star of many years ago, who died leaving $3,000,000 to charity.

Stylishly dressed in a brocaded blue velvet dress with silver lining, with rhinestones at the neck and on the sleeves, and a black sailor straw trimmed, with her henna hair showing plainly beneath, the claimant made a striking picture as she took her place to face perhaps days of grilling.

She refused to take a chair, when opposing counsel offered her one, telling her that she might tire before the long ordeal of examination was over.

"I am perfectly strong enough to stand up," she said.

CASE NEAR CLIMAX.

Mrs. Blankenburg answered questions in a soft southern drawl. Her voice was firm. She was calm, showing little emotion as her attempt to prove her kinship to the millionaire actress reached its climax.

Mrs. Blankenburg's claim is that Lotta Crabtree was secretly married in England, when she was a girl in her teens, and bore a child, after her husband had deserted her. This child, the claimant declares, was brought to Illinois and brought up there with another Crabtree family.

The claimant is about forty-six years old, but looks much younger.

IS A GRANDMOTHER.

She revealed that she is a grandmother, when she told of her family. She has three grown-up sons, the oldest twenty-seven, and one daughter, twenty-one years old.

She said she went to Tulsa two and a half years ago and lives there at No. 1408 East Cheyenne avenue. Her husband is Gustave Blankenburg, she testified, saying she married him June 24, 1896.

Under questioning by her counsel, she said she lived for twenty years in Rock Island, Illinois, and before that lived in Muscatine, Iowa.

PICKWICK CLUB DISASTER CLAIMS ITS FORTY-FOURTH VICTIM might be at home over the Fourth.

The latest victim was one of the first to be taken from the ruins. He suffered had internal injuries, a jaw fracture and a lacerated scalp.

VISIT RUINS AGAIN.

District Attorney O'Brien, Assistant District Attorney Alpert, Building Commissioner Mahony and engineers conferred in the courthouse today and then left for another visit to the scene of the horror.

At the death pit, the District Attorney talked at length with J. F. Covington, engineer for Fultz Bros., Inc., engaged in the excavating work adjoining, and then the prosecutor had one of the large concrete bases or "footings" that had beneath the Pickwick Club, sent to the Watertown Arsenal.

Tests of the block will be made at the arsenal to determine the stress and load it could bear and whether the proportion of materials was in accordance with Boston building law specifications.

TO SAVE LOCK OF DOOR.

The front door to the club, which has been standing like a grim sentinel since the fated building tumbled its occupants into living graves, was to be knocked down later today and it is expected that the lock may be saved.

Edward W. Davis, Massachusetts Institute of Technology graduate and for years a construction engineer, but now engaged in a printing business at No. 46 Beach street with Ernest O. Cochrayne, called at the District Attorney's office today with his partner and declared that no protection was given the building that collapsed, as far as he could see.

Davis told Assistant District Attorney Alpert that on the day before the collapse, he and Cochrayne stopped to look over the excavation work.

"I remarked to Mr. Cochrayne," said Davis, "that the Pickwick Club wall was in a precarious condition and that I did not know what the people were thinking of to leave it that way.

"I told him that unless they supported the wall they would hear a crash in a short while."

BOTH MAY BE CALLED.

It is probable that Davis and Cochrayne may be sent before the Grand Jury as witnesses. Davis was engaged in construction work for many years and built the Hallett & Davis piano factory in Cambridge, among other works.

At the scene of the catastrophe, a small army of workers at daylight today had almost completely uncovered the "bells" supporting the base of the concrete piers which held up the ill-fated five-story building.

The experts who have been at work delving into the pit of horror has regarded these "bells" as important evident, which would show whether or not the collapse of the building was caused by faulty building material or faulty construction, rather than as a result of the excavation which was being carried on in Pultz, Inc., contractors, who had the job of excavating next door to the club, on the way to testify before the grand jury.

WORK UNDER SEARCHLIGHT.

The Grand Jury which is conducting the probe which will result in indictments of the men held responsible for the disaster, was held up until Guy Emerson, engineer from the office of District Attorney O'Brien, had completed his inspection of the "bells."

Under a battery of huge searchlights the workmen slowly removed the earth and debris from the piers throughout the night, and it is believed the report of the engineering investigators will be completed some time today.

District Attorney O'Brien announced that only a few witnesses remained to be called before the Grand Jury, and that the report of the jury, containing such indictments as the body would order, would be completed late this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

TO TEST PIER SECTIONS.

Sections of the concrete piers have already been sent to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Watertown arsenal for tests.

While these test sections were being removed from the ruins, the experts engaged by the various factions conducting investigations of the disaster openly clashed.

One clash came when Professor Edward F. Miller of Technology ordered a 200-pound section of the concrete sent to the college laboratory.

Prior to this a 200-pound sample had been sent to the Watertown arsenal for similar tests. Engineer Emerson protested the action of the Technology experts on the ground that it would be unfair to assume that the strength of the foundation piers could be determined by any such test. When Professor Miller explained that he desired to analyze the mixture used in the cement, Mr. Emerson waived his objection, but not before he had Captain Armstrong of police headquarters take a photograph of the sample, which weighed nearly four tons.

SAYS LESSEE WAS WARNED

Engineer Emerson also replied to the charge made by Hugh Stanley Urquhart, a local engineer, that the recently constructed concrete piers beneath the foundations had been dug under and between by the steam shovel used in the excavations in the adjoining lot. Information bearing on this was given to the district attorney by Mr. Urquhart earlier in the day, the latter stating that he had visited the building last Friday and made particular note of the condition of the underpinning.

Mr. Urquhart further declared that he had been so impressed by what he had seen that he had warned Hyman Bloomfield, lessee of the building, of the danger.

"Urquhart's charge is not based on facts," said Emerson. "In the first place, it would have been impossible for a steam shovel to have operated so close to the building, and, secondly, the base of the concrete piers has not yet been reached.

WHEELBARROW FOUND.

"The collapse of the building broke several of the piers through the middle and the finding of a wheelbarrow under one of the broken piers demonstrates that laborers were working close to the building. Had the steam shovel been operating there, men could not have worked so close nor could a wheelbarrow have been there."

A cursory glance at several of the piers gave the impression that they had been hastily constructed and that the mixture was little more than a combination of gravel and sand. The tests of the composition, however, which are now being made both at the arsenal and at the Tech laboratories, are expected to disclose the nature of material used. The tests are expected to take at least two days.

Michael Ward, the secretary to Mayor Curley, who could not be reached Tuesday to answer a call to appear before the Grand Jury, went before it yesterday. He said he had not been out of the State and had not been hiding or trying to evade the summons. He had been preparing to go away on a vacation trip.

There were to be three witnesses today in addition to the engineers. One will be E. W. Davis, of No. 31 Beach street, and two of his business associates, who saw some things about the ill-fated building which the Grand Jury might be interested in hearing.

The jurors will probably get the result of the analysis of the cement which the district attorney sent to the Watertown Arsenal.

will entertain as guests on the Mayflower three of the correspondents regularly assigned to White Court, the Summer capitol.

President Coolidge strolled leisurely through the rose garden in White Court after breakfast today. He admired the roses and wealth of other blossoms, which looked effective in the brilliant early morning sunshine. The ocean was blue and nature was attired in its most effective garb. The temperature was more like Fall than mid-Summer and was a relief after the torrid spell.

After enjoying the horticultural display, President Coolidge went for a hike along the country roads, trailed by three husky Secret service men. He wore a blue suit, brown felt hat and a light blue cravat.

The marines snapped into a salute as he passed the White Court garage. The President smiled and courtlily saluted the "early birds" among the correspondents that were for evening newspapers. After he had passed down the elm-lined walk he suddenly halted and one of his guards returned to announce to the newspapermen that the trip to Fort Warren on the Mayflower would take place this afternoon.

Bowles Undecided on Race for Congress

Springfield, July 9 (I.N.S.).—President Coolidge's request that Henry L. Bowles run for Congress in the Second District failed to bring prompt response.

Bowles returned today from Swampscott and said he had not decided yet to accept the invitation to offer himself as candidate for the Republican nomination to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Congressman George B. Churchill of Amherst.

Bowles said he had talked with men close to the President at Swampscott, but did not meet Mr. Coolidge.

County leaders said the attitude of Bowles, while non-committal, was considered favorable.

Price of Refined Sugar Lowest Since 1922

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—The lowest price for fine granulated sugar since 1922 was established in the New York market, yesterday, when refiners reduced the quotation to 5.40 cents a pound.

Continued depression of the raw sugar market and competition from western beet sugar accounted for the decline.

Plain Citizens Urge Action on Disaster

By the men in the street—and their sisters, too—opinions on the Pickwick Club disaster were given the Boston Evening American today, and the demand universally was for quick justice in the fixing of responsibility.

With no mincing of words, some of those picked at random and stopped on the street for their viewpoint of the tragedy, put the responsibility flatly up to city officials.

Others blamed the excavation work and declared that those responsible for the alleged failure to shore up the building, must answer for the collapse.

Some of the "street" opinions follow:

Fred Dacey, No. 182 Braintree street, Somerville, taxicab driver—The fire in the Pickwick Club building must have loosened up the plaster and the floor by the pounding in of so much water. It should have been closed by the authorities.

Mrs. T. Keahane, Wollaston, housewife—I think the Pickwick Club accident was one of the most terrible things I have ever heard of. I think the grand jury should not lose any time in fixing the responsibility on the ones at fault and bringing in an indictment very soon, if only for the sake of the mothers, and wives, and relatives of the people who died such horrible deaths.

E. S. Jackson, No. 74 Strandway, Wollaston, shipping clerk—The Pickwick Club disaster seems to be one of those terrible things that always has to happen before people will demand the safeguarding of their own lives. The people present had as much right to be safeguarded as any other club with a higher standard.

Charles E. Lee, secretary of the Boston Real Estate Exchange—Certainly a terrible catastrophe has happened which never should have happened. Whether or not the laws are inadequate to prevent such a catastrophe, I do not know. If they are inadequate, they should be improved. If any misfeasance, malfeasance or nonfeasance exists on the part of our officials, proper cognizance should be taken, and no doubt the authorities will do so.

Charles E. Fish, No. 80 Federal street—The Pickwick Club accident was an unnecessary accident, because it should have been promptly closed upon the investigation that took place after the fire.

U. S. Pugsley, retired, of No. 5 Cutter Park, West Somerville—I would abolish all clubs where nightly operations are conducted behind closed doors. In the enlightened twentieth century Boston should be awake to the menace of "bootleg" liquor and secret immorality. Had both these conditions not existed there would have been no Pickwick Club disaster.

George F. Taylor, No. 875 Huntington avenue, a salesman—The Pickwick Club collapse should teach the city of Boston to make immediate inquiry into the condition of all structures built more than a generation ago. There must be many others in a similar dangerous condition as was the Beach street death trap and now is the time to list and inspect them.

Mrs. Carl T. Twitchell, housewife and mother, of Laporte, Ind.—I am surprised that a club of the reputation held by the Pickwick Club should be permitted to operate in the fair city of Boston. This is my first trip to the East and I am shocked beyond words that young girls dancing till the early hours of the morning should be liable to such danger as that which snuffed out their lives on the morning of the Fourth.

'Rare' Vanity Case in Ruins of Pickwick Club

What Medical Examiner Timothy Leary describes as "a rare type of vanity case" reposes in the Southern Mortuary as one of the relics of the tragic Pickwick Club collapse.

Because the case appears valuable and contains $8 in money, the medical examiner is desirous of finding the owner, if living, or the next nearest person to whom the case properly belongs.

Identification of the case is asked by Medical Examiner Leary, who will turn it over to the person making the identification.

MILLIONS FOR CATHOLIC CHARITY

San Francisco, July 9 (A.P.).—The Catholic Daughters of America, in biennial session here, have spent nearly $1,000,000 for charity during the last five years and have reserve funds adequate for the construction of several new clubhouses for working women and girls, the report made to the convention by Miss Catherine Rooney, national secretary, shows.

The delegates adopted resolutions opposing pacifism, birth control, eugenics and race suicide. A resolution making divorce laws more rigid also was approved.

district organizer of the Steamfitters' Union; Frank McCarthy, New England organizer, A. F. of L.; John T. Walsh, president of the Building Trades Council, and John Ryan, business agent of the Bricklayers' Union. Fire Commissioner Glynn also attended services.

One of the largest funerals was that of Johnny Duffy, popular singer at the Pickwick Club and other Hub places of entertainment, and one of the three unlucky victims of the Pickwick quartet.

Duffy's funeral was held from the home of his brother, Fred Duffy, at No. 30 John A. Andrews street, Jamaica Plain, and when the cortege reached St. Thomas's Church in South street, the edifice was jammed with mourners, whose number included Fire Commissioner Glynn.

A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Edward J. Moriarty, with the Rev. William P. McNamara, deacon, and the Rev. Maurice Flynn, sub-deacon.

Pallbearers were Thomas Duris, Frank Collins, James Green, James Gallagher, Walter and William Hawley, Chris O'Brien and John Hanley, and the ushers at the church were Carl Jansen and Martin Connors. Burial was at St. Joseph's Cemetery.

The funeral of Arthur M. Graham of No. 18 Kingsboro park, Jamaica Plain, popular restaurant keeper at No. 85 Beach street, and one of the victims, was held with a funeral mass at the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Brookside avenue.

The Rev. William R. O'Connor was the celebrant and pallbearers for the flag-draped casket were: Rannie McDonald, Joseph Mahoney, Hugh O'Lalla, Ray Noble, Thomas Murphy and John J. Conley.

A delegation from the Boston Lodge of Elks attended. Burial was at St. Joseph's Cemetery.

Love Lost, Girl Kills Self in Third Try

New York, July 9 (I.N.S.).—Life without love was barren for Frances Weltschlak, a talented Polish girl, graduate of Warsaw College, skilled in languages, music and art. She wanted to die.

Ten days ago she swallowed poison, but lived. Then she turned on the gas, but was rescued. Yesterday she swallowed iodine and plunged from the fifth floor. She died today.

Among her effects were notes which told of a blighted love affair two years ago, when she was nineteen.

GOODWIN CALLS JUDGE MAHONEY UNFIT TO SIT

Branding Judge Jeremiah J. Mahoney of Lawrence as "unfit to sit as a judge," and calling for the impeachment of the jurist if such a thing is possible, Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin has retorted in bitter language to the suggestion of Judge Mahoney that revocation of licenses be the penalty for drunken driving.

Judge Mahoney when queried on the Registrar's attack, declared that he refused to be drawn into a controversy.

The latest broadside of the registrar in part declares:

"The suggestion is about as ridiculous as anything Judge Mahoney has said, but not so bad as some of the things he has done. He says the way to stop drunken driving is by keeping a license away for five years, and he does not believe in sending defendants to jail because he sympathizes with their families. Well, it is about time to have a little sympathy for the families of the victims.

"Recently while he was sitting in the Superior Court, a case was tried before him. A man, while drunk, ran over the sidewalk and crushed four little children up against their own doorsteps. This man had appeared at my examining point the same morning and had been refused a license because the examiner could smell liquor on him.

"In this particular case, of course, the remedy suggested by Judge Mahoney is ineffective because the man had no license and I couldn't take it away from him.

"All these facts were presented to Judge Mahoney and the jury. The jury convicted the defendant. It was probably one of the worst cases imaginable—a man, without a license, driving while drunk, and crushing and bruising four little children who were on their own steps, and this sympathetic judge then proceeded to fine him $100.

"I don't know what is necessary in this State to warrant impeachment, but if there ever was a case calling for such action, I think it is this case.

"Another case that came before Judge Mahoney while sitting in the Suffolk Superior Court was the following: On May 11, last year, a man ran into and killed a 18-year-old young woman in Dorchester. Because of the political importance of his counsel, his case was continued time after time until finally, on February 17, nine months after the accident, he was tried by a jury with Judge Mahoney sitting, and after the jury had heard the case for three days, he was convicted.

"The time to have sentenced that man was then, because Judge Mahoney had all the facts fresh in his mind, but he continued the case for disposition until June 8, four months later. It was again continued to June 12 and Judge Bishop refused to pass upon it, holding that the judge who should pass upon it was the judge who sat, and finally, on June 24, Judge Mahoney fined the man $200.

"It is such miscarriages of justice as these that are tearing down respect for the courts among the people."

BEGIN TEACHING CHILDREN AT 2, YALE MAN URGES

Los Angeles, July 9 (A.P.).—Starting public instruction of children when they are two years old was advocated by Dr. Arnold Gesael of Yale, speaking at the opening of the thirty-second annual meeting of the International Kindergarten Union.

"America should follow New England's example in this matter and give the younger American children instruction in health, physical nutrition, fundamental educational material hygiene, deportment, self control, poise and language," he said.

WOMAN LOSES $735 HIDDEN IN APRON

Salem, July 9 (A.P.)—Mrs. L. M. Wheeler, of No. 145 North street, reported to the police the loss of $735 in bills from her apron while sweeping the sidewalk in front of her house. Afraid to leave the money in the house while she swept the walk, she wrapped it in her apron. Upon returning indoors, she discovered her loss.

Scathing Report of Underwriters Rouses City Officials to Action

Charges by underwriters that Chelsea is one of the worst fire hazards in the country are to be thoroughly probed by a special commission appointed for the purpose by the Chelsea council.

Fire Chief David A. Hudson, Alderman Clarence Richmond, Samuel Cobble, a publisher, President Samuel Eisenberg of the Safety Council and Building Inspector James Denning are members of the commission which has already started on its investigation.

The probe is the result of the recent scathing arraignment of the city's neglect by Percy Bugbee, field secretary of the National Fire Protective Association, who at that time stated "certain well known insurance companies absolutely refuse to write any risks in Chelsea, and others have withdrawn from the district."

IGOR QUIGLEY ACTS

Almost a year ago the underwriters presented a report calling attention to the fire menace which exists in Chelsea, but nothing was done about the matter at that time. Igor Quigley took official cognizance of the recent report of Mr. Bugbee, however, and sent a communication to council urging that a commission be appointed to investigate the situation.

The so-called "rag shop district" Ward 2 will come in for a thorough investigation at the hands of the commission.

"A FIRE AVERAGE.

In commenting upon this district, Bugbee in his report declared: "The whole district is practically a shambles for a fire. A very large portion of the construction is the cheapest type. Open spaces between buildings are piled high with scrap iron, rubber tires, rags, papers and other refuse, imposing a serious exposure hazard on the adjoining buildings. Under conditions of weather, time of day, etc., no fire department, however powerful, could prevent a disastrous conflagration."

The "underwriters' figures, secured as the result of a survey, show that in 1924 there were 12.83 fires for every 1,000 population in Chelsea, as compared with an average of 2.7 fires per 1,000 population in the entire United States.

ARMED HARVEST HANDS COW CREW, STEAL TRAIN

Lamar, Ohio, July 9 (A.P.)—Armed with revolvers and clubs, about 50 wheat field workers boarded a Wabash freight train east of Syracuse, Kan., and subdued the crew. When the engineer to "speed up," the train passed through Syracuse, the conductor dropped a note to the police at Lamar to meet the train. A hastily organized posse boarded the freight as it slowed down here and began firing over the heads of harvest workers. Six were captured and there were no casualties.

Following the posse some of the harvest hands dropped from the train and showed fight but when the posse began shooting they scattered.

GERMAN KILLED BY DRINKING POISON

Kennebunk, Me., July 9.—Alderman Charles H. Houston died suddenly last night from drinking accidentally a preparation used by his son-in-law in his greenhouse. He was a contractor. He had served in the city government four years.

DREADED RETURN TO JAVA

Failed to Find the Man She Came to See; Gave Farewell Party

New York, July 9.—The Baroness Helen Zur Muehlen tossed aside youth, wealth and beauty and died for love.

Undequited affection for a fellow-American, and despair at the thought of joining her middle-aged millionaire Dutch husband in distant Java, were revealed before her fatal plunge to death from her suite in an exclusive uptown hotel here.

This theory gained strength as the authorities, after a cursory investigation, dismissed the mystery of the death of the Baroness with the medical report:

"Death was due to injuries received in a fall."

And to a query as to the cause, District Attorney Banton stated:

"There was no evidence of homicide being committed."

FRIENDS SAIL AWAY.

But even before the finding had been made, the liner Berengaria was carrying toward England the two persons who knew the secrets of the baroness' inner life.

They were her intimates, Sir E. Victor Sassoon, wealthy British banker, and Sassoon's traveling companion, Mrs. J. P. Walen. The latter, a young English matron, lived near the baroness in Java, where Walen is engaged in coffee growing.

SOUGHT MAN SHE LOVED.

According to intimates of the Baroness, who arrived in New York with Sassoon and Mrs. Walen two weeks ago, the trip to this country was made to see for the last time a man with whom she had fallen in love, but who did not return her affections.

She failed.

A farewell party was given Tuesday night. Covers were laid for eight.

According to some members of the party, the Baroness said she was uncertain whether she would sail with her two companions on the Berengaria. She announced that her luggage had not been sent to the boat.

DRINKING AT DINNER.

The Baroness drank heavily, attempting to achieve gaiety. Finally she succeeded. Near the table, but not members of the dinner party, she recognized a friend, Louis Rothschild, vice-president of the Chelsea Exchange Bank, and a man companion.

Rothschild recalled today:

"The Baroness was gay. I bowed to her and later cut in for a dance when she came around the floor with Sir Victor Sassoon.

"We danced and at the conclusion she laughed and said 'good-bye. I'll see you in Biarritz.'

MEMORIES BLURRED.

What happened after the dinner party will probably remain a mystery, even to the surviving members of the smaller party which later adjourned to the suite of the Baroness.

Several empty whiskey bottles found in the room offered mute excuses for blurred memories.

What is clear is this:

The Baroness, Mrs. Walen, Thompson and Cowley went to the suite on the seventh floor. Sasson went to his room nearby on the same floor and retired.

There was drinking and then, in some unknown manner, the Baroness disappeared out the window. Thompson and Cowley both swore that they heard no scream.

GIRL CLINGS TO ROOF 50 FEET UP IN AIR

Woonsocket, R. I., July 9.—Ten-year-old Yvonne Archambault of No. 10 Elbow street, during her span of life, will never have come closer to death than she was when she slipped over the edge of the roof of a dwelling at No. 327 East School street, and for minutes hung fifty feet above the ground with only the tips of her fingers holding to the edge of the slippery shingle roof.

The child was playing with a friend, Madeline Hanshaw, at the East School street residence and climbed from a fourth floor window to a sloping roof, to play. The shingles were wet and the child slipped slowly over the edge of the roof, saving herself from the death fall by grasping the edge of the roof, but unable to pull back to the roof.

A boy, passing on the street, climbed up a porch railing from the third floor of the building and assisted the child in maintaining her hold on the roof until rescuers arrived on the roof above and saved the child.

CENTURY PLANT BLOOMS 65 YEARS EARLY

A century plant in the Public Garden is regarded by Boston horticultural experts as the Peavo Nurmi of the flora world.

The plant has just clipped sixty-five years off the blooming record of the species.

For thirty-five years, from the time it was a small slip, the plant has been in the Public Garden and it has rewarded the municipal gardeners for the attention showered on it for over three decades, by coming into bloom on its thirty-fifth birthday, instead of waiting to reach the hoary old age of 100.

The plant, which is fourteen feet high, is located near the Washington monument and is being viewed and admired by thousands daily. The blooms will probably remain until the end of the week.

LAWYERS DRAFT DOHENY NAVAL OIL LEASE RULING

Los Angeles, July 9 (A.P.)—Former Senator Atlee Pomerene of Cleveland and Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia, special government counsel in the Elk Hills oil case, have arrived to confer with counsel for the Doheny interest's over the form of decree to be filed in accordance with Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick's recent decision.

Judge McCormick upheld the government's contention that the Doheny leases in the Elk Hills naval reserve had ben obtained through fraud and collusion and ordered the defendants to "cease trespassing" on the lands.

The defence will appeal.

A. F. OF L. HEAD HERE IN CHILD LABOR DRIVE

Steps to force drastic child labor legislation and to compel passage of the much discussed workingmen's compensation act were taken at a conference of labor leaders at the State headquarters of the American Federation of Labor today.

William Green, head of the A. F. of L., with his staff, discussed the steps to be taken with State officials and members of his staff.

While no official statement as to the result of the conference was made, Green in an interview with the Boston Evening American stated that resolutions regarding Child Labor and Workingmen's compensation legislation will be placed before the State convention of the A. F. of L. in August.

Every local in the organization will be called upon by the resolution to take immediate action to force passage of the legislation. A tremendous drive, it is understood will be inaugurated, to arouse public opinion.

MOTHER OFFERS $100 FOR NEWS OF HER GIRL

Bennington, Vt., July 9.—To speed up the search for her 16-year-old daughter, Olive, who is believed to have gone away with a married man, Mrs. Myra K. Hall has offered a reward of $100 for information regarding her.

Olive disappeared on June 23 and a fruitless search has been conducted for her throughout Vermont and New York.

The girl is believed to have left home with Guy A. Cole, 28, who formerly boarded with Mrs. Hall. Cole is married and his wife is working here as a domestic and is aiding Mrs. Hall in the search.

Cole and the girl were seen in an automobile, which was traced as far as Dorset, Vt.

PREDICTING SPLIT IN BRITISH CABINET

London, July 9 (U.N.S.).—Shoals ahead for the Baldwin Ship of State presaged a change of crew, opposition newspapers predicted today. Liberal and Laborite newspapers pointed out that Premier Baldwin has been harassed and has been holding daily cabinet sessions to consider the turmoiled coal strike and the situation in China, Russia, India and Morocco.

Internal differences are agitating the Cabinet, the opposition press charged and changes in personnel were likely, it was said. The premier consideration of subsidies for industries was said to have brought dissention.

BURGLARIES AROUSE BRIGHTON FOLK

Police of the Brighton station are being severely criticized by apartment house dwellers in the Allston section of Boston for failure to ferret out a gang of thugs that have opened up a new field for robbery—the locker rooms in the basements of the apartments.

The Ashford street section of Allston has been the main scene of operations of the thieves while the apartment house at No. 59 Ashford street has been looted particularly often.

Within the past several days, two locker rooms in this apartment have been entered while thieving were prevented from getting into a third room by the breaking of a skeleton key.

The advent of warm weather has made the work of the band particularly easy. The janitors of the apartment houses are in the basements only infrequently, there being no furnace fires to demand attention, while many of the occupants of the buildings have gone away to the seashore for the Summer.

The trunks and boxes in the storeroom of Nicholai Paulsen at No. 59 were forced open and the contents scattered about the room. The thieves apparently found nothing that appealed to them except some pattern making tool which they took.

A suit of clothing and furs were taken from the locker of William H. Speece in the same building while an unsuccessful effort was made to enter the locker of Mrs. Charlotte J. Hollins.

Residents of the apartment house claim the robberies were reported to the police but that little or no effort was made to investigate the crimes or search for the thieves responsible.

Vengeful Texan Gets Prison for 7 Swindlers

Kansas City, Kan., July 9 (A.P.)—The revenge of J. Frank Norfleet, Texas ranchman and pursuer of seven men who fleeced him of $45,000 in 1919, was consummated here yesterday when Judge Kimbrough Stone, in Federal Court, denied W. B. Spencer a permanent writ of habeas corpus.

This decision will permit Texas authorities to return Spencer to Texas to serve an eight-year sentence imposed on his conviction of the swindle. Spencer was the last of the seven men whom Norfleet had hunted down. All the others are imprisoned.

RICH GOLD LODE FOUND IN OLD MINING FIELD

Quesnel, B. C., July 9.—Discovery of a gold lode at Carbon, eighteen miles from Stanley, in the famous Lightning Creek district, which, in the early 60's produced many millions in gold, was announced by J. P. Williams, Stanley hotel proprietor and a prospector.

High-grade ore was found along the ledge, which is from ten to fifteen feet wide and easily traced on the surface for more than a mile, Williams said.

OLD BULLDOG SAVES GIRL, BATTLES SNAKE, DIES

Muskegon, Mich., July 9 (A.P.).—"Krip," an old brindle bulldog owned by Miss Mabel Hill, gave his life to save his mistress. While walking near her cottage at Point Sheldon, she came upon a rattlesnake coiled ready to strike.

"Krip" attacked the reptile, killing it only after he was severely bitten. It was only a few minutes before the poison started its work and within an hour the dog had died.

FRENCH TO MAKE PEACE WITH RIFFIANS

Abd-El-Krim to Be Offered Autonomy by Paris and Madrid

Paris, July 9 (A.P.).—France and Spain will offer Abd-El-Krim autonomy in the Riff region of Morocco under a Spanish protectorate. This is one of the principal features of the Franco-Spanish accord regarding Morocco signed at Madrid.

Paris, July 9 (A.P.)—Abd-el-Krim continues to mass his Moroccan warriors for a drive against the French lines in the upper Ouergha valley. Information regarding the wily chief's plans has reached the French intelligence service and measures to combat them are under way.

Meanwhile the Riffian propaganda proceeds with some success, notably among the tribes south of the Ouergha, but it is hoped the appearance of troops raised by the Sultan will serve to counteract it in a large measure.

Travellers arriving in the Spanish zone say the recent evacuation of civilians from Taza, on the railway east of Fez, was ordered because the Moorish tribesmen there abandoned their friendly attitude toward the French as soon as the garrison left for the Riffane fighting front. Many of the male civilians, however, chose to remain and organize a protective force of their own.

The Franco-Spanish agreement for a combined land blockade of the Moroccan zone, supplementing the sea blockade already established was signed yesterday in Madrid.

Britain Refuses to Join Spain in Drive on Riffs

London, July 9 (I.N.S.).—Great Britain refused today to join with Spain in a blockade of the North African Coast, as part of a campaign to defeat the rebellious Riffian tribes under Abd-el-Krim. In a note to the Spanish foreign office, Austen Chamberlain, British foreign minister, declared the Spanish request for co-operation in the proposed blockade, stating that in British opinion such action at present would merely provoke Abd-el-Krim.

NO CLUE OBTAINED YET IN RUTLAND (VT.) ROBBERY

Rutland, Vt., July 9 (A.P.)—Although a Boston detective is here working on the case, State's Attorney Lawrence C. Jones had obtained no clews in connection with the robbery of the safe of the town clerk's office at Pittsford Tuesday night. About $560 in cash and $200 in silverware was taken. This is the third robbery in this part of the State within a few days.

FORD WILL GIVE $10,000,000 TO START AIR MAIL

Makes Offer as He Seeks to Interest Los Angeles Men in Country-Wide Project has given Los Angeles' bankers and business men a confidential outline of his project. In the negotiations it was made clear that the auto magnate was "well able to swing the deal alone," but he is seeking as associates in his proposed airways men of influence whose names will lend to the success of the plan.

CLAIMS THEORY PROVEN.

Mr. Ford, as a first move, would obtain from the government exclusive contracts for the daily air mail. That this mail can with a profit be carried at existing rates has long been the contention of the auto manufacturer.

His theory has been proved by operation of a fleet of his own ships flying between Detroit and Chicago.

This same type of ship would be used in the nation-wide mail service. Hundreds of planes would be put into use.

Terminals and air mail stations would be established in all leading cities, north and south, east and west. Regular schedules, over mapped routes, would be maintained.

Los Angeles should be linked with New York over air lanes traveling via Salt Lake City and Chicago.

That the proposal made to Southern California financiers is also being made to men of wealth and influence in other sections of the nation, was the declaration of Mr. Ford's representative in his negotiations here.

NEW HAMPSHIRE BARS INTERSTATE BUS LINES

Manchester, N. H., July 10.—The Interstate Stage Lines, Inc., is to be enjoined from doing any intra-State business in New Hampshire, declared Justice Sawyer in Superior Court following a hearing on the petition of County Solicitor Hazelton, seeking to have the bus company restrained from transporting passengers for hire within the State. The injunction is to be served on Monday.

MOTHER, DESPONDENT, KILLS SELF WITH GUN

Presque Isle, Me., July 9 (A.P.).—Annie Crandell Condon, thirty-four, was fatally shot yesterday in her home in Chapman near here. Despondency due to a nervous breakdown was held responsible for the shooting. William Condon, her husband, who was working near the house, heard four shots fired and found her dead.

Had Love Letters Photoed for Her $100,000 Suit

San Francisco, July 9 (A.P.).—The combination of love with efficient business methods by a Chicago stenographer, Miss Beatrice Lichtenforf, revealed in her suit for $100,000 against Dr. Charles W. Sanborne, for alleged breach of promise, amazed jurors sitting in the case here.

Sanborne testified he had never proposed to the girl and had abandoned thought of marriage when he learned her interest in him was mercenary.

But photostatic copies of seventy-one love letters written by him, in which he spoke of marriage soon, were introduced. They showed postscript lines to "return this letter as usual."

When attorneys for the doctor questioned the good faith of Miss Lichtenforf, in having copies of the letters made, she testified she was prompted only by the desire, common to every girl, to keep her love letters. The originals were returned to Dr. Sanborne promptly.

WIFE WHO SHOT ACTOR FAILS TO GET BAIL

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—Mrs. Edith Parker David, twenty-two-year-old former "Vanities" girl, who came to Broadway from Oklahoma, was still in jail today for shooting her actor-husband, Allen Davis. Earl Carroll, producer of the "Vanities," has been making arrangements for $10,000 bail to get her out. She insists she loves the man she seriously wounded.

"I don't know why; I don't remember anything about it; it's all a blank," she sobbed. She denied she was jealous. Detroit detectives credited her with references to another woman. She said they had quarreled, but about what she wouldn't tell.

Davis, an understudy to the leading man in Carroll's "White Cargo," is recovering from bullet wounds in his neck and jawbone. He has declined to send a message to his wife and refused even to see her if she is released on bail.

"In a couple of days I may be better and change my mind," he said. "I don't know why she shot me."

Without his consent authorities cannot press the felonious assault charge on which Mrs. Davis is held.

AUTO INJURES MOTHER AND SON, 3

Both in Hospital After Ineffectual Rescue Attempt on Broadway, Chelsea

Mrs. Mary McNulty, twenty-two years old, of Chelsea, and her three-year-old son, James, are in the Chelsea Memorial Hospital after the mother's ineffectual effort to rescue her son from the path of an automobile on Broadway, Chelsea.

The car, driven by Ralph Pullo of No. 20 Oxford park, Revere, struck the mother and child, while scores of pedestrians looked on, powerless to act. Mrs. McNulty suffered injuries to her right arm and was cut and bruised, while the boy was cut about the face.

The driver of the car, according to the police, was not responsible for the accident, mother and son being on opposite sides of Broadway, and when the boy ran directly in the path of the machine, the mother ran to his rescue.

STREET COMMISSION TO HANDLE CITY TRAFFIC

The City Planning Board's recommendation that a traffic advisory board be appointed to consider traffic problems has been definitely abandoned by Mayor Curley.

The Board of Street Commissioners has informed the Mayor that under the law the commissioners are charged with making traffic rules and that this authority cannot be delegated to any other body.

The report of the commissioners cites the law covering the case and the Mayor has announced that he will be guided by their decision.

BRANSFIELD INJURED IN MOTOR COLLISION

Waterbury, Conn., July 9 (A.P.).—William E. Bransfield, manager of the Waterbury Eastern League baseball club, and Charles Cullen and James Melaven, officers of the Painters' Union of Worcester, were injured on the Meriden road near here, when an automobile in which they were riding collided with a truck.

Cullen suffered cuts and bruises about the head and body, Bransfield was cut about the face and bruised on the arm and shoulder, and Melaven suffered broken ribs and nose.

MEXICAN CHIEFTAIN ACCUSED OF SEDITION

"JUST SEPARATED," SAYS HOLLYWOOD ACTRESS

Hollywood, Cal., July 9.—Priscilla Dean, the movie star, denied that she and her husband, Wheeler Oakman, were contemplating a divorce. It is just a "friendly separation," she explained.

"You see I make more money than Mr. Oakman," Miss Dean said, "and he wanted to go to New York and make good. He's there now and I guess he's doing pretty well without me."

PUNCHES DROWNING MAN IN JAW TO SAVE HIM

Dublin, July 9.—Mabel Mercier is neither a life guard nor a prize ring fighter, but she could get along at either job.

Mabel plunged into the sea fully clothed at Killiney to rescue a drowning man. The drowning one grabbed Mabel's throat and Mabel knocked him cold with a right to the jaw. Then she brought him ashore, and after several hours pumping at his arms resuscitated her catch.

DYING GUNMAN VIOLATES CODE, GASPS NAME

Police Lay Slaying of Third Brother to the Chicago Rum War and Hunt "Cavalerro"

Chicago, July 9 (A.P.)—The name "Cavalerro," spoken by the dying Tony Genna, and three theories on the motives of his assassination guided police inquiry today into the latest upheaval in Chicago gang land.

Tony, third member of his family to fall before bullets in sixweeks, yielded to entreaties of relatives at his death bed and violated his gangster's code of silence to grasp the name. And with this clue the police began gathering suspects.

The interrogation of seven men was based on belief that rebellion among the dealers and distributors against the Genna control of alcohol had caused the shootings; that an intended victim of an extortion scheme had struck him down or that the shooting was another act of reprisal for the murder last November of Dean O'Banion, rival gang leader.

In the plea of Sam Genna, Tony's brother, for police protection, investigators saw grounds for belief that the entire Genna clan has been marked for death.

"Please," begged Sam, "don't send me home. They're after me, too. First it's Angelo, then it's Mike, now it's Tony and next it'll be me."

A police guard was given Sam and he was taken to a secret hiding place. Search was made for Pete Genna, fined several days ago for carrying a pistol. Jim, the sixth brother, is supposed to be visiting in Sicily.

Husband Kicked Golf Ball; Wife Wins Divorce

Des Moines, Ia., July 9 (A. P.—Happiness reigned in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford E. Hinshaw of this city until they took up golf. Mrs. Hinshaw, in a suit for divorce, said her husband imposed "unheard of cruelties" upon her on the golf course.

He would kick her ball off the course every time she made a good approach, she said, especially when she reached the green in less strokes than he did.

Judge Utterback granted Mrs. Hinshaw the divorce and $50 a month allmony.

Coal Strike May Extend Round World

London, July 9 (I.N.S.).—World-wide action of miners' organizations in impending strikes was seen as a possibility today, in the light of the call for a special meeting of the executive committee of the International Miners' Federation in Paris for July 28.

It was reported the committee would consider joint action in the difference between operators and miners in the United States, Great Britain and elsewhere.

BRIGHT BLOOMS ON EXHIBIT AT SWAMPSCOTT

The first annual flower show of the Swampscott Garden Club, held on the estate of William A. Paine at No. 144 Beach Bluff avenue, has been voted a complete success by the North Shore women who participated.

More than 200 visited the Paine grounds during the progress of the show and inspected the profusion of blooms on display.

Mrs. Fredric Beebe of Littles Point, president of the Swampscott Garden Club, was awarded first prize for the most unusual display of flowers shown. She exhibited an array of gorgeous flowers, with the Lasandras flower the color note of the group.

"Varieties of an old-fashioned garden," cut from the garden of Miss Helen Guild of Beach Bluff, was given first prize in the amateur class. Her unique exhibit included 14 vases of rare blossoms that are "homey" in their appearance.

"Constance," a dainty yellow rose exhibited by Mrs. William A. Paine, won first prize in the best display rose exhibit, which included the "Gorgeous," "Louise Catherine Breslaw," "Gruss and Teplitz," hybrid tea rose, and "Duchess of Wellington," all frail imported blossoms cultivated at the Paine Gardens.

Greeting the visitors as they entered the Play House was a stately bowl of double delphinium (mixed) which won first prize for the "best all-round display." It was entered by Mrs. F. P. Ahern of Beach Bluff.

Mrs. Herbert Gale of Swampscott received first prize in the "perfection of bloom" class with her fascinating display of Delphinium and Lilium Candidum, which graced his side entrance of the show room in a huge glass bowl.

ARCHBISHOP'S DEATH IS "PRACTICAL JOKE"

Montreal, July 9.—The Catholic community of Montreal was shocked yesterday when a newspaper announced with flaring headlines the death of Archbishop Bruchesi. Telephone at newspaper offices and the archbishop's palace were kept busy with anxious inquiries. It developed that some "practical joker" had telephoned the newspaper an alleged message from a hospital that the archbishop was dead. He has been seriously sick for some time.

AMERICA WON'T PRESS CHINESE CONFERENCE

Washington Expects England and Japan to Act in Harmony on Final Policy

London, July 9 (I.N.S.).—The United States wishes to bring no pressure for an immediate conference seeking abolition of extra territorial rights in China.

Nor is the United States worried over the fact that Great Britain and Japan are exchanging notes over their policy in China.

These were the principal points made in a statement issued at the American embassy today. At the same time, it was understood that William Perkins, representative of the State Department at present in London, was satisfied with the British policy and saw no possibility of Great Britain differing with the United States regarding action of the powers in China.

The American presentations urging a conference to discuss extra-territoriality as provided in the Washington agreements have been made through the usual diplomatic channels, but no note has been presented, it was stated.

CITY FIREMEN RULED AS ALWAYS ON DUTY

Portland, Me., July 9.—A fireman is constantly on duty, according to a ruling of the State Industrial Accident Commission. It finds that David C. Fogg, a city fireman, injured while on his way from a station to his home for dinner, when he alighted from an electric car, was on duty then. He was struck by an automobile and his leg was broken.

AUDITOR TO HEAR SCHOOL HEAD'S REMOVAL CASE

The contention of Oliver H. Toothaker of Rockland that he was illegally removed from his position as superintendent of schools in Rockland by Carroll A. Enston and other members of the school committee, and that he should be reinstated, came before Judge Pierce in the Suffolk Supreme Court. It was then decided that after the papers in the case had all be filed. The case should be sent to an auditor for a hearing on the facts.

U. S. Sent Out 150,000 Miles of Macaroni

Atlantic City, N. J., July 9.—If the macaroni exported by the United States in 1924 had, instead, been wrapped around the Globe, it would have girdled it at the Equator about six times, it was shown by records produced here at the Twenty-second annual convention of the National Macaroni Manufacturers' Association.

American macaroni exports last year totaled 7,750,000 pounds, the figures revealed. Each pound contained about 100 sticks a foot long, or 775,000,000 feet, 150,000 miles in round figures. Even Italy, famed for its macaroni output, did not export as much of the elongated edible.

always be profiteers in a war as there will always be maggots in a dead dog.

"O WOMAN! In our hours of ease,
Uncertain, coy and hard to please,
When pain and anguish wring the brow,
A ministering angel thou!"

That's how it was when Scott wrote poetry. That's how it is now. Yesterday Mrs. Allen Davis, known to the stage as Edith Parker, was moaning prettily: "Don't let him die! I love him so."

"He," her husband, was lying in the hospital containing two bullets that his wife had shot into him.

SHE MUST have been "uncertain, coy and hard to please" before the shooting, but the moment pain and anguish began to wring his brow she "loved him so."

Poets know more about the heart of woman than ordinary men. The husband in this case, crawling on his hands and knees, blood flowing from two bullet wounds, shouted in apparent surprise: "My God, my wife shot me."

THE RECENT dance hall collapse in Boston killed four times as many as were killed in the much-advertised Santa Barbara earthquake.

No one says: "I shall never go to New England, the buildings there fall down."

THE PEOPLE that know California best are the Californians. William R. Hearst, for instance, born in California, is living on his ranch now, with Mrs. Hearst and their five sons, a few miles from Santa Barbara, and will stay there for the Summer. A New York friend, inquiring about the safety of the Hearst family, got this answer from Mr. Hearst:

"Come out here and learn that California is big enough to reach from New York to Chicago, as safe as any place in the world, great deal safer than most places, and has the best Summer climate in the world."

Hearst's ranch is half a mile up on a steep hillside at the edge of the Pacific, just north of Santa Barbara. And he doesn't worry.

WALL STREET went home in good spirits yesterday, despite the recent failure of nearly $40,000,000. That failure, which might have startled the world a while ago, is just a "financial incident" now. Unless you talk of billions, you don't startle anybody, in 1925.

MONEY IS CHEAP again—that is if you want to borrow it for speculation—only 3½ per cent. Many stocks went to new high prices. Wheat and cotton were higher. Foreign exchange was stronger. A really pleasant day.

A LITTLE GIRL of seven set fire to six houses and was sent to an industrial school for correction.

Not long ago this child would have been punished with death, perhaps by burning, first being encouraged to denounce the "witch" whose evil spirits had compelled her to set the fires. The world is not as bad as it was once, even if it seems less religious than it used to be. Tell Mr. Bryan.

And well it might in view of the character of the merchandise and the fact that the price reductions are even more drastic than we usually quote for these complete clearance events.

The stock is especially attractive—Kuppenheimer and similar goods—all new this season, of choice quality and correct style. Our regular prices were the lowest in New England on merchandise of equal quality and desirability. But the stock is so large, and the time for disposing of it so short that we've cut the prices deeper than usual to insure the complete clearance which our policy demands.

MAYOR URGES ALL TO AID PICKWICK HERO FUND

surance of deep appreciation of the service of the Boston Evening American in providing so material an aid to two deserving families, who have been sadly bereaved by death.

"I sincerely trust that every citizen of Boston will contribute to the Fund, so necessary to the welfare of those dependent for support upon the labors of two deserving public officials, whose lives were sacrificed in the line of duty."

The Mayor also turned over to the fun another check for $50 sent to him by William H. Thayer of the United States Radiator Corporation. Mr. Thayer's letter to the Mayor, accompanying his check, was as follows:

"I enclose herewith check for $50, payable to your order, and would ask that you kindly forward $25 to each of the families of the two unfortunate policemen who met death while in the performance of their duty at the Pickwick Club.

"I regret to bother you with this detail, but knew of no quick method of having these funds reach the proper parties except through you."

ALEXANDER ON DUTY.

Despite rumors that have spread around town to the effect that Inspector Alexander was not on duty when killed in the Pickwick Club collapse, Police Commissioner Herbert Wilson assured the Boston Evening American that he was on duty. He was there for the purpose of apprehending a jewel thief whom he expected would drop into the club early that morning. At the time that Inspector Alexander was crushed to death in he pit of death he had a picture of the alleged jewel thief in his pocket to assist in identifying him, according to Commissioner Wilson. Another police inspector had been with "Benny" Alexander on the same task up to a short time prior to the accident.

That the dependents of both men merit whatever sum may be raised in their behalf is indicated by the records of both. Alexander was one of the best loved men on the Boston police force and had many important captures to his credit. He knew the underworld as few men know it and always knew where to look for information when any big "job" was "pulled" in Boston or any other large eastern city.

Although Patrolman Halleran had been on the Boston force a much shorter time, he was credited with having done excellent work. He saved a boy from drowning and captured one of the worst holdup men that ever terrorized this city. Prior to becoming a policeman he did his bit in six of the principal battles of the World War as a member of Battery B, 103d Field Artillery.

He fought at Chateau Thiery, Chemin des Dames, St. Mihiel and Verdun, as well as in many minor engagements. He was a credit to the Boston police force.

Inspector Alexander leaves six children, all too young to work, and a widow. Halleran leaves a widow. With their breadwinners suddenly removed from their midst these eight persons will need many a lift during the next few years. This twin-fund was started by the Boston Evening American to provide those lifts and will be assisted by prominent men of integrity in handling and disbursing the money.

POLICE WIDOWS FACE DARK OUTLOOK

Another woman, Mrs. Anna Halleran, sits alone today, not knowing what the future holds for her.

Only a few short days ago she was a happy wife, happy in her comfortable home with her young policeman husband. Now, widowed as a result of the tragedy of the Pickwick Club, she faces the inevitable. Her home must go and she must work in order to live.

The worst of it is she is not very strong. Her health for the past few years has not been good and when the crash came she found that she had nothing.

In the first sharp horror of the tragedy Mrs. Halleran did not have time to think of her personal needs, but now that the first shock is over and her dear one laid to rest she is forced to make plans for the future. And she does not know just where to turn.

Paul Halleran, though one of the youngest members on the force, was one of the most popular. He had always a smile for those with whom he worked and no one ever saw him out of temper. He was the favorite in his family and his sisters and brother feel their loss almost as keenly as the young widow.

Halleran had an excellent record overseas as well as on the police force and his friends, who are legion, will sympathize with the wife whom he has left behind, who must start life again anew and alone.

The late Inspector Alexander was one of Halleran's friends.

Alexander's family are slowly trying to adjust themselves to their new life, the life that must be lived without the adored husband and father.

There are five small children in the bereaved family and the mother, because of their youth, cannot leave them alone, especially baby Marie, who is only eighteen months' old.

Those who have their loved ones safe cannot fully appreciate the tragedy of those who must face the world alone. Tragedy made doubly awful by the fact that there are little children who must be fed and clothed, as in the case of Inspector Alexander's family, and by the knowledge that health, the most important thing in the human equipment, may break under the strain.

Every penny given to the fund for the benefit of their families will mean peace of mind and enough at least to keep them from want until they are able to go on alone.

How to Help Build Up Fund for Police

I WISH my contribution to the Boston Evening American's fund for the dependents of policemen who died in line of duty in the Pickwick Club disaster to be used for—

The dependents of Police Inspector Benjamin Alexander

OR

The dependents of Patrolman Paul Halleran

(In sending your contribution to the Pickwick Club Disaster Editor, Boston Evening American, please use the form above. Let the name of the police officer whose family you want to help stand. Scratch out the other name.)

LEWIS HOPEFUL OF AVERTING COAL STRIKE

Miner's President Thinks Agreement Can Be Reached Before September 1

Atlantic City, N. J., July 9.—A strike or suspension of operations in the anthracite fields of Pennsylvania hinges on the outcome of the joint conference between the operators and representatives of the hard coal mine workers which starts here late today.

The present wage contract between the United Mine Workers and operators expires August 31 and will not be renewed under present circumstances, according to John L. Lewis of Indianapolis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

CALLED "PURE BUNK."

Samuel D. Warriner, President of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company of Philadelphia, who spoke for the operators, answered the charge made by Ell. Searles of Indianapolis, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, that the operators would enter the negotiations predetermined to refuse the miners' demands with a view to forcing a strike.

"That is pure bunk and a charge which has no basis," declared Warriner. "It is the same thing which Lewis, Andrew Maitey, president of District No. 7, and others said at the tri-district miners' meeting in Scranton, last week.

LEWIS HOPEFUL.

"The formal reply of the operators will be made tomorrow, but I want to state emphatically at this time, that we will do everything we possibly can to avoid a cessation of work in the mines if there is any such cessation it will be the fault of the operators."

Lewis likewise stated:

"The present agreement between the miners and operators will continue in effect for seven weeks more. Surely, in that length of time, it should be possible to negotiate a new agreement at this conference."

JOHN COOLIDGE VISITS GRAVE OF GRANDSON

Plymouth, Vt., July 9 (A. P.)—Colonel John C. Coolidge, father of the President, exchanged his dressing gown for a suit of clothes for the first time since his recent illness. He then drove to the cemetery where his grandson, Calvin, lies buried and laid some flowers on the grave. It was a year ago yesterday that Calvin died.

GUARD UNITS IN DRIVE HERE FOR RECRUITS

Officers of units of the Massachusetts National Guard are recruiting their outfits up to full strength in anticipation of the departure on Saturday for the annual tour of duty at Camp Devens.

The guardsmen, 9,000 in number, will be in camp for two weeks and the rookies now being signed on will be full fledged soldiers on their return from camp. Entraining for the camp will start early Saturday morning and by nightfall all the units will be at the camp.

Major-General Edward L. Logan will command the division, Brigadier-General Alfred F. Foote, the 51st Infantry Brigade,; Brigadier-General Thomas F. Foley, the 52d Infantry brigade; Brigadier-General C. W. Hale, the 51st Artillery brigade; Colonel John D. Murphy, the 181st Infantry; Colonel Albert Gray, the 182d Infantry; Colonel Frank Converse, the 181st Infantry, and Colonel Paul Norton, the 164th Infantry.

FIRE TRUCK CRASHES AUTO; 2 MEN UNHURT

Two passengers in a car, parked in Central square, Cambridge, narrowly escaped injury when the automobile was wrecked by Ladder 3 of the Cambridge fire department which became unmanageable because of the collapse of the steering knuckle which controls the front wheels.

The men, Harry Drucker of No. 484 Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, and Samuel Zeolwick of No. 8 Chester avenue, Somerville, were showered with glass and thrown from their seats when the rear end of the heavy truck ripped open the steel side of the sedan like so much paper.

GIRL DRIVER KILLED AS CAR UPSETS

Machine Skids from Road, Rolls Over Twice and Pins Her Under It

Amherst, July 9 (A.P.)—Miss Grace E. Cowan of Amherst daughter of H. W. Cowan, retired paper manufacturer, was killed and two companions were injured last night when the auto she was driving skidded from the road at a fork and rolled over twice, pinning her underneath.

Miss Margaret C. Moore of Amherst suffered a possible fracture of the skull and was cut and bruised, but is expected to recover.

Howard Fairweather of Boston, owner of the car, was bruised and shaken, but did not require hospital treatment.

Witnesses said the car was traveling at a high rate of speed.

3 JUDGES GRANT 101 DIVORCES IN 3 DAYS

WOMAN HELD IN DEATH OF BOY SHE INSURED

Denies She Administered Poison Which Killed Youngster

Chicago, July 9 (A.P.)—Mrs. Minnie Reiger, forty, was arrested here charged with killing four-year-old Elmer Sherman to obtain $250 for which she had the boy insured. The lad with his two-year-old brother had been living with Mrs. Reiger since their mother, Mrs. Dorothy Sherman, twenty-four, separated from her husband and went to work to support the children.

The boy collapsed while playing and died July 5. A coroner's physician found he had swallowed poison. Mrs. Reiger had insured the boy a short time previously. She denied poisoning the boy, but said she had the poison in her home and that he might have swallowed it accidentally.

Wife Slayer to Hang

Chicago, July 9. (A. P.)—Frank Lanciano, convicted of the murder of his common-law wife, Rose Attilio Lanciano, on March 27, has been sentenced to be hanged October 16. Motion for a new trial was overruled.

RED HAIRED WOMAN SOUGHT AS KIDNAPER

New York, July 9.—A woman with flaming auburn hair is sought by the authorities as the kidnaper of Roscoe H. Canaday, dress manufacturer. The boy was snatched from the lawn in front of his home in Forest Hills by a woman who made off with him in an automobile containing two men.

It was the second time Roscoe had been kidnaped. The first time was when his father, who is separated from his wife, Mrs. Virginia Canaday, went to Texas and "stole" him from his wife.

MALDEN MAYOR FIRM AGAINST ASSAILANT

"Not Fit to Be at Large," Dever Says of Youth Who Shot at Mayor

Mayor Dever of Malden has refused to intercede for Asa L. Clark, the Stoneham youth who is accused of stealing the mayor's automobile and then firing a revolver shot at the mayor who pursued him.

"Any man who goes around talking to people in a normal way with his hand on a loaded gun is not fit to be at large," the Mayor informed Attorney William R. Scharton, who was appointed counsel for Clark by the court.

Clark originally pleaded guilty to the charge in connection with the theft of the car and the shooting, but later changed his plea to not guilty.

Clark has been held under $2,000 bail pending a jury trial.

GIRL TEACHER PLIES PAINT BRUSH

Receives Note of Thanks From Board of Education for Rejuvenating Schoolhouse

Stamford, Ct., July 9.—Miss Louise Cornish of Cortland, N. Y., has set a precedent that might be followed by other young teachers who contend with stubborn boards of education.

Miss Cornish, who is a college graduate, was the principal and sole teacher in the Lang Ridge School near here. For long she has appealed to the Board of Education to apply a coat of paint to the schoolhouse.

The board kept procrastinating, but not even when Miss Cornish decided to go to another school did she forsake her determination to see her building painted.

She canvassed until paint was given to her. She procured brushes, donned a pair of overalls and, with the aid of her brother and a pupil, covered the weather-beaten building with a gray coat.

LYNN VETERAN MUST FIGHT FOR JOB

Mayor Unable to Aid Deposed Head of Isolation Hospital

Henry J. Caproni, Spanish-American War veteran, will have to fight again for the restoration of his job as superintendent of the Lynn Isolation Hospital.

Caproni was removed a year ago but was returned to the post by the Lynn council when the veteran appealed from his dismissal.

Now, with the veterans' preference act modified, Caproni can only appeal from his latest dismissal to Health Commissioner Michael R. Donovan, who is the official who "fired" Caproni.

Caproni has declared he will fight the latest dismissal. He appealed to Mayor McPhetres to aid him but he said there was nothing he could do in the matter.

McCLINTOCK WILL TRIAL POSTPONED TO JULY 13

Chicago, July 9 (A. P.).—Under an agreement between counsel action to probate the will of Billy McClintock, for whose death William D. Shepherd was tried and acquitted, has been postponed until July 13.

Divorced 15 Years; Talk on Phone; Remarry

Mt. Vernon, N. Y., July 9 (A. P.).—Divorced fifteen years ago, when they were "a pair of foolish kids, who couldn't agree," Mrs. Mary Wood Mason of this city and George Sylvester Mason of Baltimore were remarried. The reconciliation resulted from a long-distance telephone courtship on the part of Mr. Mason, lasting only five minutes.

Protect your health on these hot days

"HOW you feel" depends on "how you eat."

Forget hot, heavy foods.

Eat lots of these cool, crisp, wonderfully flavored Kellogg's Corn Flakes. They add delicious zest to hot weather meals. Keep you cheery and fit when other folks are sweltering.

Ready-to-serve, with cold milk or cream. A tempting feast with fruit added.

Only Kellogg's can bring you such flavor! Such crackly, crunchy deliciousness! Never tough-thick. Never leathery. Always fresh.

More than 10,000,000 people every day insist on Kellogg's—the original and only genuine corn flakes.

Sold by all grocers. Served at all hotels and restaurants.

Kellogg's CORN FLAKES

Imitations cannot bring you such wonderflavor—such crisp, crunchy flakes. The only genuine corn flakes have the signature of the originator,

W. K. Kellogg

. S. YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION URGED BY PASTOR

Indianapolis, July 9 (A.P.).—Consolidation of all the young people's denominational organizations in America and the formation of a Christian youth movement of America was urged by the Rev. Mark F. Sanborn, Detroit, in an address before the Baptist Young People's Union of America here today. Rev. Mr. Sanborn is president of the union.

He held that such an organization would "be one of the mightiest forces for good in the world. We could consolidate all the unorganized idealism of the Christian youth of America and direct that idealism along practical channels and place it at the disposal of the most constructive social programs of our day. I tell you the gates of hell could not prevail against that power."

REQUIREMENTS AT HARVARD SCORED

Hub Graduate Says Rejected Students Go to Princeton and Yale

The entrance requirements at Harvard are attacked by William Edmunds, '00, in the current issue of the Harvard Alumni Bulletin.

The Boston man declares the admission system is wrong when students are refused at Harvard but gain admittance on the same qualifications at Yale or Princeton. He declares sons of Harvard men, in some instances, are now attending Yale or Princeton because they were rejected at the Cambridge institution.

The writer takes exception to recent letters in the Alumni Bulletin written by Langdon P. Marvin of the alumni admission committee and Henry Pennypacker of the committee on admission.

Investigation has disclosed to him, Mr. Edmunds declares, that certain discretionary powers vested in the Harvard authorities are invariably used against the student seeking admission, while at Yale and Princeton the students are favored.

The writer also attacks the system which prevents a student from playing on the freshman football team when certain slight conditions are held against his work in the class room.

Actress Meets, Charms, Weds Clergyman

Syracuse, N. Y., July 9 (A. P.).—A romance which began last Summer in Atlanta, Ga., while Miss Ramona Weaver Baxter, Syracuse actress, was appearing with a stock company in the Southern city, reached its climax here yesterday with the marriage of Miss Baxter to the Rev. Ernest John Bowden, pastor of the Atlanta Unitarian Church.

After a honeymoon in Stillwater, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Bowden will leave late next month for Atlanta, where Mr. Bowden will resume his pastorate.

Mrs. Blanche Weaver Baxter of Syracuse, Mrs. Baxter's mother, formerly was an actress and was visiting in Atlanta at the time her daughter became acquainted with the clergyman.

HAS NO HOME, BUT OCEAN SUITS HIM

New York, July 9.—Sam Desheresky, the latest "man without a country," is also without a care in the world.

Sam is thirty-six years old and is now a guest of the White Star Line, having made three round trips to Europe in as many months, only to be refused admission into all countries at which the ships carrying him have touched, including the United States, from which he set out to visit Russia.

He came to New York from Russia several years ago, but took no steps toward naturalization. Lured toward his native land by tales of life under the Soviet regime, he sought to return, but having no American status he could not obtain a passport.

So he became a stowaway on a White Star Liner. The White Star people have had him as an unwelcome guest ever since and may always have him, for neither England nor the United States will let him land.

GOVERNOR AND MAYOR AT VETERAN POST CEREMONY

Governor Fuller and Mayor Curley were among the distinguished visitors who attended the inauguration of a new chapter of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, in the U. S. Veterans' Hospital, No. 44, in West Roxbury. The officers of the new chapter who were installed were: Commander, Manuel Teixeira, senior vice-commander, Peter Dowling; junior vice-commander, Harry Volkman; treasurer, William Kennedy; judge advocate, Scott Smith; chaplain, William Wall; sergeant-at-arms, Bartholomew Doherty; adjutant, Bernard Quinn.

YOU CAN IMPROVE your position and increase your income by going to Summer school and learning a profitable trade or profession. Special Summer rates are offered in today's Classified Ads.

U. S. TO COMBAT SUPERSTITION OF $2 BILL

Belief That It's Unlucky Now Costs Taxpayers $1,000,000 a Year

Washington, July 9 (Universal).—The old superstition that $2 bills are unlucky is costing taxpayers of the country $1,000,000 a year. That, in the opinion of treasury officials, is too much to pay for a mere superstition. Therefore, they plan to put $5,000,000 of the much maligned bills into immediate circulation, and to wage a nation-wide campaign to popularize them.

The cost of each bill printed is 1½ cents, regardless of its denomination. Each of the additional $2 bills would retire two $1 bills, resulting in an immediate saving of more than $1,000,000.

Opposition to the $2 bill is based chiefly on its supposed resemblance to its smaller brother, the $1 bill. But, according to treasury officials, a closer resemblance exists between the $1 and the $5 bill.

"You never heard anyone complain of paying out a five in mistake for a one," they say.

HAND OF KLAN SEEN IN TRUE NAME ARREST

Rash, Bailed by Pastor, Has Case Continued Until August 3

Attleboro, July 9.—The work of the Ku Klux Klan is suspected in connection with the arrest here of Edward L. Rash of the Briggs Hotel, who is charged with violation of the true name law.

Detective Coleman C. Read of Keene, N. H., head of a detective agency and active in Klan circles, also is active in the prosecution of Rash, who it is claimed, lived at the Briggs Hotel since last December, under the name of A. E. Wood.

When Rash was arrested by Patrolman Edward E. Gobin, the prisoner was bailed by the Rev. Frank L. Briggs, pastor of the Bethany Church, South Attleboro, and owner of the hotel.

The case has been continued until August 3.

GIRL TAKES POISON; OVERDOSE SAVES HER

Julia Miller, 19, a telephone operator, was taken to Lawrence Memorial Hospital last night from her home, No. 49 Marshall street, Medford, suffering from the effects of swallowing four bichloride of mercury tablets. Members of her family say she took the tablets by mistake.

The fact that the girl swallowed an overdose made her ill at once and probably saved her from quick death, according to Dr. E. D. Lee of Medford.

VACATION RESORTS AND TRAVEL

News and Advertisements

THE desire to travel—so strong in most of us—is a heritage of those by-gone ages when primitive man roamed at will, or as necessity dictated.

The lure of distant places, of strange scenes, so potent in the spread of civilization, still exerts a helpful influence, broadens our viewpoints and, ofttimes, by upsetting our smug complacency with things as they are, gives to life a fuller, richer meaning.

Where to go—what to see, how to get there—these and a hundred interesting facts are given in the Vacation Resorts and Travel News and Advertisements published in Today's paper. You'll find it worth your while to

MAINE BAN ON MOOSE HUNTING OFF TOMORROW

Rockwood, Me., July 9.—Moose hunting in the State of Maine is to be allowed again for the first time in four years. The ban, which was put on when the moose herds dwindled, will be lifted tomorrow. Great herds have been seen in the Moosehead and West Branch regions, and it is believed that sportsmen, long awaiting the opportunity, will turn out to hunt them.

WALES' PRIZE BULL WINS AT MONTREAL

Montreal, Que., July 9. — The Prince of Wales has captured the highest honors at Calgary Exhibition, his shorthorn bull, King of the Fairies, being declared grand champion for the second year in succession, also winning the senior shorthorn bull championship and first prize in the three years and over class.

BURGLARS ROB STORE 4 TIMES IN 6 MONTHS

Williamstown, July 9.—For the fourth time in the last six months the store of R. L. Powell of North Powell was burglarized yesterday. Loot valued at $50 was taken. The thieves were frightened away before completing their job and in their hasty flight, a pile of loot, valued at $1500, which had been collected in the store, was left behind.

CITY TO DELAY DAMAGE CLAIM OF $280,000

Mayor Will Not Approve Commodore Hotel Payment Pending Inquiry

Ira W. Shapiro, trustee of the Hotel Commodore at Broadway and Tremont street, apparently will have to wait some time before he receives a check for $280,000 from the City of Boston, for the hotel property taken in connection with the proposed widening of Tremont street.

Mayor Curley and the finance commission have completed a set-to over the payment of the damages, with Corporation Counsel Mark Sullivan putting an oar into the controversy.

The upshot of the entire affair seems to be that the mayor will not favor the payment of the money until the city's legal department advises him that the city's interests are safeguarded. The finance commission, it appears, is in favor of the same thing, which is unusual.

The controversy started when the finance commission sent a note to the mayor suggesting that the payment of the money to the hotel trustee be held up. There are several damage suits pending, in connection with cancelled leases of the hotel property, and it is feared, the commission stated, that the city might have to pay damages twice.

The mayor promptly sent a reply to the letter of the finance commission setting forth that he would accept the judgment of the authorities constituted under the law to pass upon the legal questions involved, namely, the corporation counsel.

Then Mr. Sullivan sent a letter to the finance commission announcing that he would "give due consideration to the rights of all claimants against the city, but with an eye for the city's best interests and protection."

GENUINE VELASQUEZ SUBJECT OF SUIT

Saragossa, Spain, July 9.—A genuine Velasquez, not bigger than nine inches by six, but valued at $50,000 is involved in an action brought by Ramon Pujol Barcelo against Fernando De Juan, an antiquarian of Madrid.

Barcelo said he intrusted the painting, representing the Crucifixion, to De Juan to place on sale. The antiquarian denied he had received the painting.

London, July 9 (A.P.)—Professor Frank W. Taussig, Henry Lee professor of political economy at Harvard, was elected corresponding fellow of the British Academy at the annual meeting at which the Earl of Balfour presided.

BRICKLAYERS REFUSE TO END UNION WAR

New York, July 9.—Efforts to bring peace between the bricklayers' and the plasterers' unions failed utterly and all negotiations are off.

The bricklayers flatly refused to submit the quarrel to arbitration.

More than $25,000,000 contracts for building are already tied up because of the strike.

SMALL BOY DROWNS WHEN BOAT CAPSIZES

Pawtucket, July 9.—Joseph De Marco, eight, of Providence, was drowned yesterday in Stumphill pond, near Lincoln. The boy was in a small boat with two companions when its capsized. His playmates swam shore. Angelo, a brother, tried vainly to save Joseph.

POLICE SEEKING BOARDER AS SLAYER

Warrant Charges Man With Death of Wakefield Veterinarian

Wakefield, N. H., July 9.—With the issuing of a warrant charging Ernest Welch alias Earl Vincent with manslaughter in connection with the death of George Dyer, 60, last fall, [illegible] police today [illegible] the [illegible] was [illegible] a [illegible] Dyer.

[illegible] Welch [illegible] a [illegible] in the woods [illegible] to [illegible] Dyer, who was shooting, attempted to [illegible] Dyer, an attractive woman of 30. The [illegible] is claimed, attacked Dyer with a gun barrel, inflicting injuries which caused Dyer to go insane. Following the removal of the injured man to the home of relatives in Somerville, complications developed and death resulted.

Shortly after the alleged assault, a warrant was issued for the arrest of Welch, charging him with assault with intent to kill. But the charge has been changed to manslaughter.

DEFENSE OPENS IN 18 SALISBURY RUM CASES

2 Acquitted After U. S. District Attorney Rests Prosecution

With two of the score of defendants in the so-called Salisbury rum conspiracy cases already acquitted, the defence of the remaining fifteen opened in Federal court before Judge Lowe today.

The acquittal of Augustus Sawyer and of Hayward Dyer, a [illegible] Portsmouth, N. H., [illegible] in the town of Salisbury, was ordered by Judge Lowell upon recommendation of the U. S. attorney.

The court is also expected to render a decision today on the motion to acquit Mrs. Sarah Congdon, wife of the former chief of police of Salisbury, who is under indictment with her husband. The wife's attorney told the court that in case she is called to testify she would be unable to offer evidence that affected her husband in any way and this would prejudice her case.

Reginald E. Maynard, one of the government witnesses, admitted on the stand that he was a former employee for the prohibition [illegible] and that he had been arrested five times in the Maine [illegible] on the same charge being [illegible] latter.

The government has rested its case and the defence will [illegible] consecutive time to present its witnesses, owing to the absence of attorneys.

GIRL SAVES MAN WHO GOES DOWN 3 TIMES

Keene, N. H., July 9.—Heroic work by Miss Evelyn Strout and Willard Thompson probably saved the life of Elson Nims of this city at Wilson Pond. Nims is at a local hospital, where it is said he will recover.

Nims, who was bathing with several friends, jumped out of a boat into what he thought was shallow water, but instead it was seven feet deep. Being unable to swim, he sank three times before he could be reached. Miss Strout brought his unconscious form to the surface and held it afloat until Mr. Thompson assisted her in taking it to shore.

Day Bed Combinations

CONSISTING OF

—Day Bed—Spring—Mattress

COMPLETE, PRICED AT

27.50

The Summer cottage or home should have adequate comfortable sleeping quarters to care for relatives or friends whom you may wish to remain for a day or a number of days. The attractive Day Bed is the useful piece of furniture you should have for just such an occasion.

During the day it is most attractive and decorative as a couch. The metal ends have an exceptionally smooth and artistically grained finish in wood design. The attractive cretonne covering on one side of the mattress assures good appearance.

At night, by the simple operation of opening it and throwing one half the mattress over, it is transformed into an exceptionally comfortable bed. A full three-inch box, roll edge mattress on a strong National spring assures a good night's rest. The frame is all finished in baked gray enamel which is protection against rust.

This Day Bed combination may be had to harmonize with practically any color scheme by choosing a cretonne cover from a large and varied selection of samples.

Another Special Value

Gray Felt Cotton Mattresses

3 foot size, 10.50 Cot size, 2 ft. 6 in. size, 10.00

All new gray felted cotton is used as filling in these mattresses, which give resiliency and wearing qualities seldom found in mattresses at these prices. These mattresses have three and one-half inch box with plain edge. Fine grade striped tick is used as a covering.

NEW QUINCY PROTEST OF SIMON SWIG

Legion Takes Up Fight for Gold Star Mother

"Etta," said Sally, "Lazare doesn't destroy the formula because he doesn't want to. He wants to use it." Etta flew to anger.

Posed by Louise Groody, star of "Na, Na, Nanette," and Miss Edna Whistler of the same company. Photo by Charles G. Snyder

SALLY MEREDITH, nervy niece of

M. FREDERICK LASALLE, war gas inventor, is intrusted with the secret of opening the red lacquer case containing the formula sought by spies of rival governments. That night the red lacquer case is stolen and Lasalle mysteriously disappears. The case is so constructed that the formula is destroyed by one not in the secret.

MAJOR BILL ARMITAGE, seven years previously the sweetheart of Sally, appears in search of Lasalle. Unexpected meeting renews acquaintance, but Sally is coy and Bill blunders. At Smugglers' Leap Bill and Sally find Lasalle's fountain pen, mute evidence which adds to the fears of Bill. Sally clings to hope.

DETECTIVE WILLIAMS enters the mystery and takes up the trail of the stolen case.

ETTA SHAW, once friend of Sally, lures the girl to London. She is made a prisoner by Lazare the Goggled Terror.

Read on and enjoy this wonderful story of love and mystery.

AFTER a good night's sleep yesterday's terrors seemed far away to Sally.

All the same, she jumped a little when the door opened and a man came in. He had a flat, rather stupid face, and little dark eyes. Without taking the least notice of Sally, he crossed to the fireplace, knelt down, produced paper and sticks, and proceeded to build and light the fire. After a moment Sally said politely:

"Good morning. Can you tell me the time?"

The man continued to take no notice.

Sally tried the same remark in French, Italian and German, with the same result.

The fire began to burn, and the man got up and went out again, turning out the light on his way. As soon as Sally heard the bolt go home, she jumped up and put it on again. After that nothing happened for half an hour. Then Etta Shaw came in, leaving the door ajar behind her. She stopped just inside the room, and said good morning in rather uncertain tones. Sally responded cheerfully.

Etta came further in, and began to talk, her manner suggesting an odd blend of the solicitous hostess and the careful jailer.

"I'm so glad you're all right," she began with a jerk. "and, oh, Sally, you do realize that it was anything but a matter of life and death, and, and—service to the Cause—I mean you do realize, don't you? And I do hope you didn't lie awake, or feel worried or anything."

"Thanks," said Sally, "I slept beautifully. Are you going to open the shutters?"

"Well," said Etta, "that's just what I was going to say—about the shutters, I mean. You will be reasonable, won't you?"

"That depends," said Sally. "What do you call being reasonable?"

"Well, if you promise not to scream—just give your word of honor, you know—I'll open them directly."

"And if I don't promise," said Sally, "we shall just have to go on wasting your electric light, is that it?"

"It doesn't cost much," said Etta. "We make it ourselves." She spoke with perfect simplicity.

Sally burst out laughing. You couldn't go on being angry with Etta, she was such a fool.

"Well, it would be a pity to waste it anyhow. I don't mind promising for—let's see—the next two hours I should like some breakfast before I start screaming—that is if I am allowed breakfast. Am I?"

Etta grew very red.

"You promise not to scream, or call out, or wave things out of the window? It's only the vegetable garden, but we've got to be on the safe side."

"For two hours, yes."

"On your word of honor?"

"Oh, very well, my Etta—yes."

Etta produced a key, and in locked first one shutter and then the other. As she threw them back the light came in, pale, golden, exquisite.

Sally looked out and saw a turquoise sky overhead and, below, endless lines of cabbages emerging from a silver mist. There was no human habitation in sight, no smoke from any chimney, and no sound of traffic.

She turned to find Etta looking at her with tears in her eyes.

"Sally you'll do what they want won't you?" she said in a low, agitated voice.

"Do you know," said Sally, "what they want me to do?" Etta threw her a startled glance.

"They want you to open the red lacquer case."

"Yes," said Sally nodding en couragement. "Why?"

"Because your uncle's formula is inside it."

"Yes."

Etta Shaw threw up her hand, and her words came with a rush.

"That wicked, that abominable formula! Anyone who could invent such a thing, or dream of letting it loose on the world, is just a homicidal maniac, and if governments and laws won't restrain a person like that, and take his murderous weapon from him, why I, for one will stick at nothing to rescue what remains of civilization from the appalling fate prepared for it."

"Yes, yes," said Sally. "Of course you wouldn't, and that's why you've kidnaped me?"

"Yes," said Etta, with a sort of gasp. "When one has to choose between such awful horrors and a little discomfort to one individual, do you think one hesitates?"

"I'm sure you don't," said Sally. "I don't see you hesitating for a moment. Well, what next?

"Open the case and give us the formula, and, and—"

"And what?"

"You shall go free at once."

Etta came closer, her hands clasp-

WOULD CUT RED TAPE MAZE

Mother of Hero Airman Refused Full Compensation Because of Error in Papers

A Gold Star Mother whose son was one of the outstanding heroes of the American Expeditionary Forces has appealed to the American Legion headquarters in the State House, to untangle if possible the maze of red tape Washington has wound about the payment of adjusted compensation due her.

The mother is Mrs. Mary Talbot of No. 133 Pleasant street, Weymouth, whose son, Lieutenant Ralph Talbot, was posthumously awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for his daring as an aviator on the French front in 1918.

LEGION HANDLES CLAIM.

Lieutenant Talbot served first in the United States Navy and was then transferred to the Marine Corps aviation section, in which he was serving when he was killed in action in France.

The mother has $206.25 due her in adjusted compensation but because she filled out only one compensation blank, the government has decided she is entitled only to compensation of $110.25, covering the period of time Lieutenant Talbot was in the Marine Corps.

The State Legion officers today took the matter up with Washington and it is believed the other check will be obtained with a minimum of delay.

TABLET IN STATE HOUSE.

Lieutenant Talbot, who enlisted in the navy while a student at Yale, was one of Massachusetts' outstanding heroes in the World War. In the State House is a tablet erected to the memory of the young officer. Only three other heroes, Whittlesey, Dilboy and "Mickey" Perkins were so honored.

The compensation claim by Mrs. Talbot is due under a recent ruling of the Veterans' Bureau, and the checks were mailed out about the first of July.

A clerk in Washington informed Mrs. Talbot that she had made a mistake in filling for the compensation—that she should have filled out one blank covering her son's service in the Marine Corps, and another blank covering his service in the navy. Because she did not do this only the Marine Corps compensation was allowed.

WORKER, 74, FALLS DEAD AWAITING FRIEND'S AUTO

While awaiting the arrival of a friend in an automobile to take him to his work today, Patrick F. Burke, seventy-four years old, of No. 229 Fremont street, Somerville, collapsed and died before medical aid could reach him.

Mr. Burke, who was active for his age, made it a custom to await the arrival of his friend at Prospect street park. He was there only a few minutes when Patrolman John J. Shea noticed him fall to the ground. After giving first aid, Shea summoned a physician but Burke was beyond medical aid. Medical Examiner George Durell viewed the body.

OFFICIALS ATTEND FUNERAL OF DR. GOOD

State and city officials, representatives of the American Legion and scores of other notables joined in final tribute to Dr. John P. Good, ex-president of the Cambridge City Council and prominent Cambridge dentist, at his funeral yesterday in Cambridge. Dr. Good was drowned in the Charles River Saturday night.

Rev. Michael J. Burke celebrated the requiem high mass at St. Peter's Church. Burial was in St. Paul's Cemetery, Arlington.

HOLY WAR IN SCOPES TRIAL

Tennessee Folk Believe Civilization Itself Is at Stake

Dayton, Tenn., July 9.—"Shall we be taxed to damn our children?"

That is the new battle cry of the fundamentalists that is sweeping Tennessee today.

The fundamentalists are in dead earnest about their fight on the spread of the theory of evolution. They believe, as William Jennings Bryan said that it was a fight to the death between Christianity and evolution. They believe that if evolution is permitted to spread the church must pass away.

In spite of their opposition to the teachings of Charles Darwin, they believe this is a fight for the survival of the fittest, and that they are on the greatest battle of all.

They sincerely think this is a Holy War, a crusade indeed.

They are firm in the conviction, itself, is at stake.

They are sure evolution can only lead to ruin and disaster, wrecked character and blasted lives. They see evolution at the root of every crime.

They welcome the case of John Thomas Scopes, who is to go on trial here Friday for teaching in a public school the theory, although the people of Dayton like Scopes personally.

The evolution case is also a hot political issue in this State and has been for two or three years. Governor Peay was elected on an anti-evolution platform. He expects to be re-elected on the same plank, and then go to the United States senate on it.

Scopes Trial Likely to Be Based on Bible

Dayton, Tenn., July 9.—The Bible may go into the Court room of the United States and not be the basis of American teaching despite the scientists and, perhaps, despite the decision according to William J. Bryan, who made this threat in explicit terms here.

John R. Neal, for the defence promptly accepted the challenge and caused Mr. Bryan, after working a night at the state capitol, to prepare and rush final orders to insure the appearance of the Bible in the United States.

Dayton Probes Profiteering; Reporters Swarm to Town

Dayton, Tenn., July 9 (A.P.)—An investigation of the high costs in Dayton, and especially the rates of one hotel, has just been made by the City Commission.

No official action was taken other than the erection of a sign across the street from the hotel, urging new arrivals to call upon the Progressive Dayton Club before making arrangements to stay in Dayton.

The investigation brought out that after Friday the hotel will assess its guests $8 a day for single rooms and meals. Five dollars a day will be charged those who are willing to share rooms with others.

Rooms procured through the Progressive Dayton Club, the commission was informed, were being charged for at the rate of $2 a day without meals and 75 cents for each meal.

A Chicago newspaper is completing arrangements for broadcasting the proceedings of the Scopes trial.

Electricians were working feverishly today to install in the court House the last of scores of wires to carry the news of the Scopes trial to the world.

Headquarters of the "Anti-Evolution League" have been established across the street from the Court House. T. T. Martin an evangelist is in charge. He says the league has been in existence for a little more than one year; that it embraces the United States and Canada, and that the Rev. J. W. Porter, Lexington, Ky., is president. The league is non-sectarian.

Few Apples, but Gobs of Sauce Puzzles Prof. Snooper, Ev. Ex.

Noted Scopist Also Declares Safety Razor Has Wiped Out Many Missing Links

By PAUL WHELTON

At certain times Simeon Snooper reading authority on evolution can be considered to be in a long and warmish stage of self-satisfaction when it is seldom found he is harder to make talk than a dough man with a wood tongue.

Simeon confesses amazement to be in a life of variety of weirdness in lightweight matters.

"What amazes me so much in this world," said Simeon to us today as we sought to draw him further on evolution, "what amazes me most is that there is so much more apple sauce to the ton than apples.

"See we scribes, I mean writers, and that kind of folks and fellers and Simeon as I was—I was a good deal like the best of them—in the Sermon-on-the-Text-Seed-Sower-hard-to-the-thin-soil-stood-and-a-little-less supply of new razor blades.

A HORDE OF SMITHS

"It would be like a stirp one so we get over the ground carefully before making the next jump.

"Simply," said Simeon coldly, "that if there were fewer safety razors, there would be more missing links."

"I mean—"

Simeon was growing more bitter—a bitterness that always crops out on him with any dwelling on the difference in race between his own and the hirsute.

"I mean," he growled.

"I mean, that without safety razors there would be no Scopes trial, no Bryan, no assumption of evolution. Were there no razors the Lower Rus would all look like Abraham Lincoln or a Sunday school picnic of the House of David.

MAN'S GREATEST CATCH-ALL.

SOLOMON HERE FOR BIG BATTLE WITH MALONEY

KING IS TO RELY ON HIS LEFT

Believes He Will Conquer the South Boston Heavyweight as He Did Ad Stone

By JACK CONWAY.

KING SOLOMON, heavyweight champion of Central America, is in Boston for his ten-round bout with Dynamite Jim Maloney, which will be staged by the Suffolk A. A. at Braves Field tomorrow night. Solomon is accompanied by his Manager Joe Woods an, formerly one of Sam Langford.

Jack Conway.

"The King is one of the greatest fighters I have ever seen," declared Woodman. "He had won twenty-five straight fights since coming to America. Solomon has proved a sensation. He has engaged in four bouts and has won them all.

"Solomon's most impressive victories were scored over Quintin Romero Rojas and Ad Stone. Poor Rojas was merely a chopping block for the Central American champion.

"Stone, undefeated up to the time he met the King and conqueror of Young Stribling, was given a boxing lesson.

"Solomon has one of the best left hands of any lightweight in the boxing game. He is also blessed with tremendous speed. I think that after my years of experience with Langford I am qualified to judge fighters. And I don't hesitate in stating that Solomon is one of the best heavyweights in the world. His decisive victory over Ad Stone proved this fact beyond question. He will beat Maloney, sure.

"Maloney is wide open for left hand punches. I understand Jack Sharkey didn't experience any trouble in hitting Maloney with left hands. Solomon's left hand is every bit as good as that of Sharkey's.

The King was in excellent form at work out at Jim Toland's Gym on Hanover street.

MALONEY was due to wind up his training today. Harry Kelley says Dynamite Jim will be heavier than he was for his match with Sharkey. Maloney entered training at 194 pounds to box with the New England heavyweight champion. He is down too fine at that notch, they say, and will probably have Maloney weighing around 200 pounds tomorrow night.

It is a crucial time for the South Boston heavyweight. He cannot afford to suffer a defeat at this time. He must win over Solomon if he is to keep in the big money.

THERE is unusual interest in the semi-final of eight rounds which will bring together Stanley Stark, Lion of Poland, and the Honolulu Kid. Stasiak has proved a riot since he started boxing in his last start he knocked out Rocky Botte in a couple of rounds.

Stasiak, six feet three inches tall and weighing 230 pounds is one of the most awkward [illegible]. He is a terrific [illegible] and can take a [illegible] tied [illegible] make Stasiak [illegible].

Then there will be [illegible] bouts between Joe Dawson and Chick Smith and Al Mello and Frankie Quirk.

ROSENBERG NEARLY LOSES BANTAM CROWN

Cleveland, O., July 9.—Charles Rosenberg, of New York wears his bantamweight crown today only because of the fact that a decision was rendered in his bout with Pete Sarmiento from the Philippines. In the opinion of [illegible] who saw the bout, Sarmiento [illegible] champion a decisive battle. [illegible] was the only one of the ten rounds which Rosenberg outpointed his opponent. The fight was a clean one throughout, both men battling fiercely.

50-MILE MOTOR-PACED RACE AT WORCESTER

Worcester, July 9.—Three teams will race in the entire fifty-mile motor paced race at Worcester tonight. The teams are as follows: Team 1, Chapman and Gastman; team 2, Madonna and Pichlone, team 3, Ganay and Corey.

There will also be a two-mile professional championship race, a five-mile professional and five-mile amateur race.

BRAVES OUT TO START ANOTHER BIG SURGE

One winning streak deserves an other. The Braves' thrilling run of victories was halted by the Cards but the Tribe expects to start a new string this afternoon. The invaders won a ball game, but they had to perform a few miracles to do it. They were the luckiest birds in the world to hold out with a five-run lead coming into the last frame. Two great plays at third base, cutting off doubles and runs saved the day for the hostiles by the narrow margin of a single run.

The Braves have arrived. Their wild spurt in the last ditch proved that if their run of five in a row left any doubters. The team had been having a bad day. Hits were wasted with desperate prodigality. Twice the sacks were clogged with none down and no runs arrived. Manager Bancy made a couple of errors.

LUCKY PLAYS.

The Cardinals pulled off at least a dozen lucky plays. Three sizzling drives bounced off the glove of Pitcher Mails right at some infield er, when men were on the pillows. Everything that could possibly discourage a ball club had happened. The Tribe had a right to be down cast and lifeless. But the savagery of the ultimate assault showed that the boys have adopted the notion that no game is ever lost till it's all over.

Three pinch hitters in a row stepped up and socked the onion, socked it hard. Three of the regulars pounded out base hits. And two great stops by Bell at third base were necessary to keep the tieing run anchored at third. A club that has that sort of spirit in times of adversity cannot help getting along.

WARMING UP.

The fans are beginning to warm up to the Braves. There's real enthusiasm in the yells at the Wigwam these afternoons. The boys like the fighting finish, no matter what the outcome, and the Sunnys certainly provide at least one real kick in every pastime. The Cards, since Hornsby took them over, have been a great ball club. Even with Rogers missing, they present a batting front that rates with the best. But it took all the luck in the world to let them win yesterday, after dropping a double-header the previous after noon. The Tribe, if it can keep up its present method of brisk baseball, will be out of the cellar before it departs on the next Western trip.

CUBS HAVE FIGHTING PILOT IN "RABBIT"

By NICK FLATLEY.

Walter Maranville, new manager of the Chicago Cubs, has a habit of startling baseball. He's now in a spot where he can furnish the greatest of the many surprises of a dizzy and brilliant career. And those who know the ways of the great little shortstop feel that he will deliver. He has always come through in the big pinch, and he's had many more chances than fall to the lot of the general athlete.

The Rabbit is a perfect type of inspirational ball player and will carry his fire and fight into his managing. He has hauled many a ball club along by his brilliant personality and courage, and now that he has the procedure as a job, he will feel bound to deliver.

Nick Flatley

Walter has been mixed in many a wild and uproarious episode. He has been smashed in auto wrecks, chased off countless ball fields. He has rowed with players, fans and umpires. He'd rather fight than eat and he has a very good appetite.

But he never does any fooling on the ball field. He's a winning player, the kind of a bird who will risk his neck to steal a base, who will stick his head into a fast ball to get on, if a fractured skull would help a desperate cause. He has the courage of several lions, and remarkable strength, despite his small stature. He plays the game all the time, plays it a hop ahead of most of his rivals.

MARANVILLE is one of the natural ball players, the boys who can't do things wrongly on the diamond. Gifted with remarkable physical ability—great hands, keen eyes, some of the finest arms of all time and the fighting spirit—he has that rare and peculiar mental twist that goes with the star ball player. He does things instinctively, and they prove to be correct. He plays that position for batters and they hit to him. He has an uncanny knack of calling what the pitchers will throw in the pinches. It's simply instinct, an attribute that the psychologists and other mental sharks cannot explain.

He uses this instinct for himself, and he can use it for his ball club. He has been, in fact, if not in title, the field director of most of the clubs that he has played with. He's one of the natural strategists. Even as a kid with the champion Braves in '14, he did just as much steering as Johnny Evers or George Stallings. Even those worthies, jealous of their baseball glory, freely admitted that.

THE Rabbit, as Boston fans will remember, was the real spark in the Brave title machine. He carried the wreck of that outfit along until the season's finish, because he just stepped in with the Corsairs and made the club a pennant contender over a stretch of four years. He had the whole fighting heart of the club, enough courage to almost win three pennants.

He was the greatest second baseman in the game last year, playing a position strange to him after twelve brilliant years of shortstopping. He made the shift because the Pirates had a good shortstop, but nobody for the other side of the bag. He stepped right out, making plays that neither Eddie nor Johnny Evers attempted in their best days. And he got away with them. He's that kind of a ball player.

He was traded by the Pirates because he didn't care much about training rules. The Smoky City lawyer was probably more surprised than the rest of his baseball world when his frisky star was made a manager. But the rabbit is always played on the field, the Rabbit can lift up any team and the rules don't count much in the standing of the clubs. The elevation will tone down the Rabbit, the responsibility will do him good. If he's athletes have it in them he'll bring the Chicago club up.

THE Cubs weren't the only club to consider Maranville as a manager. Judge Fuchs of the Braves was inclined to get him a couple of years ago, when the deal with New York for Rancroft seemed on the point of being called off. The Judge, like lots of other observant baseball men, believed that a great player, with the natural knack of leadership, would make the best manager. Bancy was grabbed though, and the idea was placed on file.

The player-manager racket will be universal before long. Nine of the large league clubs are now being steered by players. The boys who get the hits and grab the speeding baseball have the sympathy and interest of the other players. They're one of the gang, in on the joys and sorrows of the battling.

Eddie Collins took over the White Sox this Spring, and made a lowly club a contender for honors. Rogers Hornsby hoisted to pilot the Cardinals, started that club on a wild victory chase. Both stars did it with the material that bench managers couldn't succeed with.

Maranville has more fire and color than either Collins or Hornsby. He's as great a player as either one. He has the same road to success open ahead. He's old as ball players go (36 years or so, but time hasn't affected his speed and skill in the least. He's a unique physical machine, a chap who is likely to stay right along with the best until he's well in his forties.

REDUCE MATCH PLAY IN GOLF TOURNEY

New York, July 9—A test even more severe than the British or American open championships will be this year's National amateur competition at Oakmont.

Using the match play competition to sixteen has added the terrific strain of an open or medal play affair to the championship proper.

The qualifying rounds calling, as they do, for 72 holes, played on two days, are placed on a footing equal in importance to the match play. Therefore it has been the custom of the 64 ranking amateurs to take no risk of qualifying as a matter of course. They were almost merely to get in. They did not put any more effort into their play than they had to. The principal idea was to reserve as much strength as possible for the matchroom encounters.

This oddity sort of play has been taboo this year by the committees plan. With only sixteen places to be awarded, everybody must jump in and play his head off if he wou'd survive for match play. Even the Joneses and the Gunns and Sweetsers cannot afford to let up a single during the qualifying trial. One little lapse may prove sufficient to keep them out of the fold.

For these reasons a new interest has been kindled in the amateur championship. He who survives those seventy-two holes of medal play is quite certain to give a good account of himself in the matches.

The more prominent of those in the East are Francis Ouimet, Jesse Guilford, Eddie Held, Dave Herron and L. M. Watts. Willie Hunter, George Voss, Jerry Travers and Harold Weed in the Middle West. Jesse Sweetser and [illegible] Briggs of New York and Bill Reekie of New Jersey.

The Middle West ranks on Chick Gardner, Dexter Cummings, Eddie Held, Dave Herron and L. M. Watts, Willie Hunter, George Voss, Gene Elm, Dr. O. T. Willing, Jack Westland and Lauren Upson are the hopes of the Far West, while the South, low in numerical strength, presents the incomparable Bobby Jones of Atlanta, along with A. C. Turner of Jacksonville and Charles Lawrecett, the inter-collegiate champion.

YOUNG GOLFERS IN THIRD ROUND AT TEDESCO

By BILL GRIMES.

With only eight contestants left, of the field of ninety-three starters, the third round of the Massachusetts Junior championships started this morning, when Ralph Munroe, the clever Unitew Shoe boy, teed off with R. C. Rockwell from Monson.

With the exception of Jim Lally from Brookline and Marshall Forrest, who was the defending champion, all of the favorites are still in the running. Lally was eliminated by Eddie Murphy in the first round, and Forrest, after being out in 45, failed to qualify.

Murphy, a smooth working youngster from Charles River Country Club, continues to draw the gallery in the State. Besides taking care of Jim Lally, Murphy has also accounted for "Red" Manning from Brookline. The little Brookline lad played fine golf, and it was inexperience which brought about his downfall. He will be heard from in the future for he has everything needed for success in the golf world.

Bobby Crowley, the popular youngster from Wollaston, is pitted against Murphy this morning. Crowley has already defeated two very fine golfers in Pat Gianferate of Woodland and A. V. Ellis of the Country Club. They don't make golfers any gamer or with more fight than Gianferante. He and Crowley seesawed through a touch match yesterday morning and Bobby was finally declared a 2 and 1 winner. The Crowley-Ellis match, in the afternoon, was decided on the 18th green.

Crowley is a fine match player. He is a very modest boy, with fine nerve and a great knowledge of the game. If Bobby can get his putter working as he should, he will give Murphy a fine battle, with an even chance of victory. Crowley is very steady, which is a great thing when playing on the well trapped Tedesco course.

GANAY WINS GREAT RACE AT REVERE

Gustav Ganay, French cycle star, won a 35-mile motor-paced race on the Revere track, covering the distance in 45 m. 21 2-5s. Ganay went to the front at the start and held his position throughout. Jaeger, the Newark youngster, finished second and Henri Wenedus third.

The men in their effort to finish second almost rode themselves out. Jaeger went across the line a winner by six inches and almost collapsed a few yards beyond the tape. Both riders required medical attention.

Lew Hartin and Fred Jarvis, a Providence team, captured a tandem team race in which 10 teams engaged.

Jarvis also captured the one-mile professional handicap. A five-mile professional event went to Frank Bartel of Newark.

RICHARDS ENTERED IN LONG ISLAND MATCH

Vincent Richards, second in national rank, heads a list of sixty-four entrants who will open play in the Long Island tennis championship at the Woodmere Club on Saturday. His presence in the tournament considerable lessens Jerome Lang's chances of winning the championship for the third time. Lang, who needs one more leg on the trophy for permanent possession, is also entered. Fred erick C. Anderson will make his first appearance in competition since he was runner-up to Jean Borotra, of France, in the national indoor championship and Percy A. Kynaston will be another leading contender.

LORD BURGHLEY LIVES THE SIMPLE LIFE

SOCIAL AFFAIRS BANNED

Lord David One of the Greatest Athletes Developed in England in Years

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Lord David Burghley, great English hurdler who is here to compete against Harvard and Yale in the international track games at the Stadium on Saturday, declared in an interview with the writer he has gained his present lofty position in the sport world by following the rules of simple training.

"I have not any elaborate training system," Lord David told the writer at the Stadium. "I live a simple, wholesome life, eat plain substantial food, keep regular hours and give daily attention to my work outside," he continued.

"During the trip from England to America, I practiced each day on deck with the other members of the British team. Some of the boys were a bit seasick, but I am glad to be able to state that I was not bothered in this way.

EAGER FOR WORKOUTS.

"You will probably remember that when I ran in the Penn games in the Spring, I arrived in the country on a Wednesday and was not careful in winning the hurdle on Friday. The fact I wasn't troubled by seasickness on that occasion either was an important factor in my victory.

"I am glad of the opportunity to work out at the Stadium. Each day I take a few flights over the hurdles. I have been as careful of my physical condition since arriving here as I was when aboard ship. I have barred all social events until after the meet.

"When I was here in the Spring I had only time for athletics, for immediately after the Penn games I returned to England.

"Captain Douglas Lowe is, of course, in charge of the team. He is coach as well as captain. He devotes a great deal of his time to directing us in our training.

Lord David is very democratic. As he talked with the writer R. L. Stevenson, old Princeton athlete who is here as a member of the British team, circled the track. As he approached Lord David he waved down and slapped His Lordship on the back.

"Hello, David, said Stevenson.

"Hello, Bill," was the cheerful reply.

FAVORITE IN HURDLES.

Lord Burghley is a favorite to win the hurdles on Saturday. He is one of the greatest athletes to be developed in England in years. He has a mark of 15 2-5 seconds for the 120-yard low hurdles.

Lord Burghley, like the great Earl Thompson, old Dartmouth star, has grace as well as speed in clearing the hurdles. He is sure to see a terrific pace for all rivals on Saturday.

At the Penn games in the Spring, Lord Burghley proved a sensation. He was pitted against the world's leading hurdlers and came through with a sensational victory. The opposition on Saturday will not be as severe as that which Lord Burghley met in the Penn games, and as a result his admirers have little doubt about his ability to come through with a win.

Stadium Pickups

Following their visit to White Court, where they were greeted by President Coolidge, the English athletes returned to the Stadium and went through the most strenuous practice session since their arrival.

* * *

The sunburn and sore feet from which many of the visiting athletes were suffering has all disappeared and they are displaying more pep in their workouts.

Hugh McGrath, veteran starter, who will handle the pistol Saturday, was on hand and gave the English men plenty of opportunity for practice starts. Hughey, who is one of the best men in the country at getting athletes off the mark, has a system all his own which would probably prove troublesome to the visitors without a rehearsal.

* * *

The combined teams will have lunch together today at the Harvard Club. After the meet, Saturday, the British stars will be the guests of the Harvard and Yale heads at a dinner in the New Ocean House, Swampscott.

The Englishmen will hold another workout this afternoon. Tomorrow afternoon, however, they will forget track work for the while and journey out to Braves Field to watch a big league game.

* * *

Arthur Porritt, star sprinter of the invaders, and E. H. Campbell, former Virginia athlete but now of Oxford, who is to compete in the mile, are due to arrive tomorrow. If they reach here on time, it is believed that they will dash off a few sprints on the Stadium grass, while their mates are watching the Braves and Cardinals in action.

The Smiling Lord Hurdler

This fair-haired, blue-eyed boy is Lord Burghley. His title does not rest heavily on his youthful head. A true gentleman, a sterling athlete, this scion of a noble house prefers in his unaffected democracy to be known as "Dave." He has smiled his way into the hearts of all true sport lovers, and is a worthy type of the English sportsman. He is a favorite to win the hurdles at the Stadium on Saturday.

BERESFORD TO RETURN CUP, WIN OR LOSE

Henley-on-Thames, England, July 9 (A.P.).—A race between Jack Beresford, winner of the Diamond sculls, and Walter Hoover of Philadelphia, for the Philadelphia Gold Challenge Cup which Beresford won at the Paris Olympics last year is still uncertain.

The meeting between the two oarsmen last night, at which the whole question was discussed thoroughly, is considered to have been unproductive of a definite date for the contest.

Hoover received a cable message from the cup committee yesterday, asking him to remain in England as it was thought Beresford would reconsider his refusal to race. Meanwhile the trophy is resting in the Thames Rowing Club.

A London dispatch said that Beresford had reconsidered his decision to turn the Philadelphia cup back to the United States without defending it, after an appeal to his "British sportsmanship" by the cup committee.

Beresford, the dispatch added, would enter the race with the understanding that he would return the cup to the United States whether victorious or not, as he held with the British rowing authorities that the Diamond sculls and not the Philadelphia cup represented the world championship.

Tickets to Braves Game Are Worth Trying For

The way the Braves are playing ball these days makes it a real pleasure to all to the grandstand and watch them. The boys are showing that they have plenty of baseball in their system and make a real interesting afternoon for the opposition no matter what it is.

For this reason I would like to give you a chance to guess the identity of the masked player. A pair of grandstand tickets await the fan who correctly identifies the player, neatness and legibility, of course, being a factor in picking the winner.

Use the appended blank and after taking a good look at the player, send in your answer, at once. And don't forget that there are three days yet to go in the capital prize contest.

FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

Rejoicing has been caused by the removal of the Southern Pacific headquarters from New York to San Francisco. No large corporation has in years taken any step more pleasing to loyal Westerners. This Western spirit is going to play a practical part in shaping future industrial, financial, shipping and other activities National in scope. Western money for Western products is becoming a slogan which Eastern capitalists and Eastern corporations of magnitude would do well to take into their future reckonings.

Several Western men of brains and capital who have established enterprises wholly new to the West have told me that this Western patriotism, so to speak, has been a most helpful factor in enabling them to open up a market for their products.

Time and time again Westerners not of the banking class or of the wealthy class have given utterance to a protest like this: "We admire so much Western money constantly flow East to be invested. We don't our Western bankers bring out more Western securities safe for Western folks to invest in?" We would rather put our money into Western enterprises, into developing our own resources and we would rather have our money handled by big Western men we know or know about, than have our money sent East to be handled by Wall Street or through Wall Street interests."

At various other places the local Chamber of Commerce is reaping the most energetic and fruitful services in attracting and aiding new plants.

The Prescott Chamber of Commerce did something different, but actuated by the same desire for local growth, when it purchased land for home sites and down to Light, sewerage and other facilities and then offered the lots for sale new residents coming from other parts of the county. In this novel way Prescott increased its population, and consequently, increased the business done by local merchants and others

The next obstacle of the long headed Westerners interested in this whole movement is to make travel across the Pacific Ocean as popular in the next few years as travel across the Atlantic has been for many years. Already some progress has been made. Steamship lines are springing into existence. Incidentally an influential convention was recently held on board ship going to and from Honolulu. The new dollar line service to the Orient is proving a factor in popularizing the new "style" of travel.

What does all this suggest? What does it all imply? Many things, including this: Those cities, communities or individuals that fold their hands in smug self satisfaction, are doomed to be left behind by the modern procession.

STANDARD OF JERSEY CANNOT RETIRE STOCK

Official denial was made by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey of its reported intention to retire its outstanding preferred stock at $115, which has been a topic of interest in the financial district. The company states that under the terms of the stock offer the issue can not be retired before March 1926.

FAYNE SPENDS WEEK-ENDS IN BOSTON

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

Comparatively few of Boston's financial lights can boast of "week ending" regularly in their home city after working hard all the week in Wall Street, but James Fayne of Hornblower & Weeks—rendered one of the greatest market operators of all time, is one who shows up in Boston practically every week-end I understand Mr. Fayne was responsible for a turnover of around a half million shares one day recently

One of Mr. Fayne's friends, Col. Leonard P. Ayres of the Cleveland Trust Co., is also a keen student of the market and has won considerable fame by the accuracy of his predictions.

Colonel Ayres says: "Over a long series of years it has been true that after a period of industrial depression, bond prices have advanced with the recovery in general business for about fourteen months after the lowest point in the production of pig iron. If that rule should again be operative in the present business cycle, it would indicate that bond prices in general might reach their high points about next September, for that would be fourteen months later than the low point in pig iron production last July."

President Raymond B. Cox of the Webster & Atlas National Bank, and Robert Homans, attorney, have been added to board of directors of A. E. Little Co., shoe manufacturers.

Carl H. Pforzheimer, one of the most prominent dealers in Standard Oil securities, declared just before sailing for a European trip, that trade conditions in the oil industry must eventually be reflected in higher prices for oil stocks.

Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston and three directors of the Atlantic National Bank of Boston, Herbert K. Hall, chairman of the board, Charles H. Farnsworth, president Quincy Market Cold Storage & Warehouse Co., and Hiram Bond, president of Bangor & Aroostook, will go on an inspection trip over the railroad.

Not many big-city bankers are able to talk authoritatively on agricultural matters, but Governor Harding is to give addresses at Houlton and Caribou on the sub ject of diversified farming.

* * *

Samuel Insull, president of the Commonwealth Edison Company, the Middle West Utilities Company and other utility companies, is in Boston. Stimulated by Mr. Insull's presence and by rumors of merger developments, several utility stocks soared to new peaks in the outside market Wednesday. After selling at 70 in th auctions at noon, Hornblower & Barss Light & Power Co common sold at 80 over the counter in the afternoon. This contrasts with a price of 40 in the auctions only two weeks ago. New England Company common likewise made a new high at 179, up twenty points from Monday.

BANK OF ENGLAND'S RESERVE IS INCREASED

Weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes in pounds: Total reserve increased 2,683,000, circulation decreased 1,424,000, bullion increased 1,259,128, other securities decreased 24,286,000, other deposits decreased 23,299,000, public deposits decreased 400,000, notes reserve increased 2 [illegible] 000, government securities decreased 4,000,000.

Cotton Prices Off

Cotton prices were weak in New York, from 17 to 24 points lower, July was down 25 at 23.67; October and December 24 and 24 points.

New York Curb

New York curb prices were higher Sun Oil 42, up ¾; Standard Oil of Indiana 68¼, up ⅞; Fox A 57, up ⅝; Niser B 46, unchanged. American Super Power B 40, up ¼; Engineers Gas 59, up 1¼.

Points in Wednesday's Market

Total sales, Jan. 1, 1925, to date—New York, 213,134,400 shares; Boston, 3,561,168 shares.

JOBS FOR WOMEN URGED IN CUBA

Habana, Cuba, July 9 (A. P.)—Cuban women need ampler protection and should be provided with an adequate means of making an honest living, Mayor Antonio Beach said in making public a plea to merchants and employers of the city to employ women whenever possible.

Mayor Beach has asked the council to adopt an ordinance making it compulsory for department stores and other establishments where women's articles are sold, to employ Cubanos, 75 per cent. of whom must be of Cuban nationality.

Habana lies on the eastern shore of Havana harbor.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

HAVE you ever thought about the position you habitually assume when you get into bed?

Do you lie down on your right side, or your left side, upon your back, or so far over on one side or the other that you almost lie with your face downward?

As a matter of fact, you at one time or another lie in all of these and even other positions.

The different positions are assumed at different times to secure the three objects in lying down—repose, relaxation and sleep.

There are, in fact, but parts of one act, that of recreative rest.

This means rest by suspending the activities of all the structures or cause and functions of your body that are under control of your will or your conscious mind or, as the psychologists now call it, just your unconscious.

Your unconscious works while you sleep, but your posture while sleeping has much to do with the effectiveness with which it works.

If you recognize the effectiveness of nerve impulses, discharges of nervous energy from your brain system during sleep, you must likewise recognize that much loss of that energy will be required if it can have the co-operation of other natural forces. This is just plain natural law.

There is less weight on your heart, and consequently less energy is required to work that pump when you lie on your right side than when you lie on the left. And less still when you lie on your back.

Your chest expands and contracts with greater freedom when it does not have to carry the weight of one or both of your relaxed arms.

The blood circulates and nerve currents move with greater freedom through an arm that is not used as pillow for the head or through a leg that is not made to carry the weight of its fellow.

Your unconscious mind, or your Unconscious, which is likewise your Censor, goes off duty then, and not until you are thoroughly relaxed, and you are never thoroughly relaxed as long as there is a particle of muscular rigidity in as much as your little finger.

Therefore, when you go to bed let loose, relax. Think over yourself, as you would look over a machine, and see that all parts have stopped running.

The best position for this purpose is upon the back. If you are not in the habit of lying upon your back you can acquire it in a few nights.

But when you do, keep your mouth shut and don't snore.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THE first thing that a woman does after she marries a man is start remaking him. Their love-nest becomes a reform school.

BUT very few husbands get any time off for good behavior.

EVEN the governor can't pardon a married man.

IF you marry a bachelor, it's easy to train him to stay around the house, but not his own.

A MAN is a machine, but you can't make a stationary engine out of a runabout.

ONE woman kept her husband in the house day and night. She wouldn't even let his mind wander.

AN engagement ring is the collar and a marriage license is the leash.

ONE guy said his life's ambition was to live in a bungalow, but he ended up in a kennel.

HE envied the Peskinses. He said "I wish my wife would treat me like a dog."

SHE let him romp around the house but she wouldn't let him play with the other husbands in the neighborhood.

A MAN may be an angel but a woman has to play safe and clip his wings.

YOU never know when he's liable to fly back to his first wife.

ONE dame broke her husband's leg so that he couldn't even walk back.

AND when that leg got well she broke the other one.

SOME wives keep their husbands on pins and needles. This one kept hers on crutches.

HE was the head of the family but he couldn't put his foot down.

HE tried it once but he had to take it right up again.

SHE used to squeeze his ankles with the nut crackers.

IT wasn't long before she became the head of the house and the feet too.

MATRIMONY is an institution and marriage is the finishing school.

BEDTIME STORY

Perseus Kills the Terrible Medusa

By Foxy Grandpa

"PLEASE tell me some more about Perseus, Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby. "You had gotten as far as where he passed the dragon which guarded the garden where the Medusa lived, and he had reached a lake."

"Yes," said I. "His helmet, which made him invisible, had made that possible. Now let me see.

"Perseus was pretty tired and thirsty by this time and when he saw the lake he sat down by it and took off his helmet and decided to take a drink of the clear water.

"While he was drinking he heard a terrible sound— like the rushing of a mighty wind.

"Quickly he put on his helmet—so that no one could see him—and as he lowered his head to adjust it —what do you think he saw reflected in the calm surface of the lake?

"The horrible form of the Medusa—the Gorgon, whom he had sworn to kill! There she sat right by Perseus with her wings folded!

"Fortunately for Perseus, he remembered that anyone who looked into the face of the Medusa would be turned into stone. But then he was puzzled. How could he slay this monster without looking at her?

"Suddenly he had a bright idea. Minerva's shield! it was so brightly polished that it shone as clearly as a mirror. So he quickly turned the mirror toward the monster, which was sitting by his side, and looked not into the face of Medusa, but at her reflection in his shield.

"Medusa was more horrible than Perseus had ever expected. She was tremendous—a giantess. Her face was terrifying. It was so cruel. Her huge body was covered with scales like those of a dragon and instead of hands she had great claws and on her head instead of hair were hundreds of hissing serpents!

"Perseus drew his sword and, guiding himself by the mirror, got up, stood over the monster, and, lifting his sword high above his head, crashed its diamond blade down upon the Medusa with a mighty stroke across her neck where the scales started to grow.

"In that short moment off rolled her head with the snakes hissing and squirming. But when it rowed in the said they gave one last hiss. The Medusa was dead.

"Now, you remember, Perseus had promised to bring the head of the Medusa back to the king, who had sent him on this dangerous expedition. So he slung the head over his shoulder so that he would not see it.

"He looked up. There flying over the lake were the other two Gorgons, the sisters of the Medusa whom Perseus had slain. They had seen the death of their sister and were hastening to wreak vengeance on her slayer.

"Of course, they could not see Perseus, because he was invisible on account of his wonderful helmet. But they could see the head of their sister and were aiming to swoop down on her invisible captor.

"Perseus quickly sprang into the air. There was nothing to do but flee from these monsters, so off he flew on his winged sandals, with the Gorgons in hot pursuit.

"Mighty Perseus held on to the Medusa's head, which left a trail of blood behind him. From one of the sparkles of this monster's blood there suddenly sprang to life a great giant. From another the winged horse Pegasus and from the lesser drops of blood hundreds of serpents and crawling things. And on and on the Gorgons chased Perseus."

"Did they catch him, Foxy Grandpa?" asked Bobby.

"I'll save that for another time," I answered. "If you want to get up early to go fishing you must go to bed now, my boy."

THE GENTLE SEX

By Mary Steele

A GIRL'S idea of a tough break is a crack in the mirror of her vanity case.

Some man's idea of getting the last word in an argument with the wife is to slam down the telephone receiver.

The fellow who is short of cash
In life's gay, giddy whirl,
I've often found it apt to be
He's also short a girl.

A woman's idea of supreme bliss: To have two new dresses and not be able to decide which is the more becoming.

Vintage of 1914: "I spent all morning looking for a package of hairpins."

A MAIDEN'S PRAYER

I hope my ship brings into me
From some far distant place
Some perfume rare,
Pearls for my hair,
And powder for my face.

Notice to girls who always want orchestra seats: Romeo and Juliet did their courting in the balcony.

What every man should know: That the most helpless woman in the world is the most dangerous.

Young Bride: Darling, will you stop by the drug store on the way home and bring me a sponge? I have a marvelous new recipe for sponge cake.

FRECKLES

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it do, give you a clear complexion the process is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any drug or department store and a few spoonfuls should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine as the strength is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove your freckles.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU had to look twice before you were sure it was a girl. She had substituted knickers and puttees, thick-soled boots, a man's ragged sweater and working shirt.

A heavy can completely covered her bobbed hair and the small face was so streaked with dust, oil and perspiration that only the girl was visible. But that grim mouth and the sparkle of the one eye that peered from under the peak of the cap, told the ancient tale-mate of Judith, Eve and Cleo, inc. It was a She, all right, and functioning on all six despite the knickers and puttees.

For a moment she grinned at me, then the boy, straddling his motorcycle, shouted, "C'mon, kid." With a merry hop she landed on the seat behind him, gripped him with two small, dirty fists and they were off in a cloud of dust, bent for the hills at sixty miles an hour.

The Kind Win Respect.

"How disgusting," snorted the Perfect Lady with fire. "Did you ever see such a dirty girl in your life? What respect can men have for a girl like that?"

I watched the cloud of dust diminish on the horizon—watched it ominously. There went Youth, Love, Adventure! Then I looked at my Perfect Lady and I said words which sent me even lower in her estimation, if that were possible. "Women like that are the only women men have ever really respected," I said.

The Motorcycle Girl of the 20th century phenomenon but the spirit that moves her is as old as Eve. She played from hunt matadons when the world was young. She trudged behind him on the trail, and I haven't a doubt that he shouted the baby-throated equivalent of "C'mon kid!" and that she grunted in return.

They drove their flocks together when the cave dwellers had become nomads. She lowered the floods her small, dirty paw striking out beside his greater, matted one. She braved the bitters and sulked beneath the desert suns. Dirty, industrious, brave and merry, she has come down through the centuries with him—the very substance of life surely rib, the complement of his primal soul.

Helped Conquer West.

It was the social service Motorcycle Girl that made that Maytlower journey possible and sent the pioneer mothers out there over the prairies and deserts in swaying wagons, because they have passed, too, over those women with an aura of superhuman piety and gravity.

But was it your good fortune to meet a real pioneer woman? It was mine. I grew up amongst them—old women who had really crossed the plains, young women who were living on them. Were they weak martyrs of meticulous nicety of manner and speech? I'll tell the world they aren't.

Band of Comradeship.

We've been a terrible misapprehension as to the bond that unites men and women. Because the Man has ever paused for the glimpse of a pretty ankle or the pressure of soft, white arms, we have thought that pretty ankles, soft arms, unsullied skins and fastidious manners ruled the whole.

But Man will always pause for anything new and curious and amusing. He will sink his teeth into any peach that has ever left the trail. He will also write poems and rare songs and buys baubles for the sake of ankles and peachy skins. But the true foundation of his self, the woman who really helps him to make history, isn't a creature of unblemished skin or coy and shrinking nature.

She's as daring and as battered as the man she follows—one's as close to the dust and the risk—as filled with highway wisdom—as scornful of delay.

SEX CHARM MAY DRAW MEN AND WOMEN TOGETHER, BUT IT TAKES MORE THAN THAT TO KEEP THEM TOGETHER.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

These merry motorcycle partnerships aren't based on sex charm. The ladies who depend on sex and sensitiveness aren't clinging to pounding, roaring, dust busting mechanical monsters, or smudged young men in soiled leather jackets.

They're keeping a bright eye out for the lad with the Kitzy car in preference to the one with the fliver.

WOMEN BORN 1873 TO 1881

Now Is the Critical Time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will Help You Safely Through

Convoy, Ohio.—"During the Change of Life I was weak and run-down and could hardly do my work. By reading your advertisements I found out about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it benefited me right out and made me feel like a new woman. By the time I had taken eight bottles I was well and could do my housework on the farm without trouble. I recommended it to my daughter-in-law after her second baby was born and it did her a wonderful lot of good. I told her to try it and if it didn't help her I would pay for it, and before she had taken one bottle she said to me, 'You won't have to pay for it!' It is helping me wonderfully!' And she took three bottles of it. You can use my testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. FLSIE ACKERMAN, Convoy, Ohio.

Consider carefully Mrs. Ackerman's letter. Her experience ought to help you. She tells of the trials of middle age and the wonderful results she obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A recent canvass reports 98 out of every 100 women are benefited by

JELLY MAKING

Putting up fruit is rather an odd expression when one comes to think of it. What would an intelligent foreigner make of it? Would they think that we were talking of arranging fruit on high shelves, or putting up fruit where it could not be easily reached by greedy hands?

Even to us familiar with our own idioms, it is not a very definite statement. Putting up fruit, as a matter of fact, may mean canning, preserving or the making of jams and jellies. Canning is properly preserving the fruit as whole as possible and using as little sugar in the process as will keep the fruit from spoiling. Preserving fruit means cooking the fruit with much more sugar and making a much richer delicacy of it. Jams are often made of fruit which is not perfect enough for either canning or preserving, but these jams may be often the most useful and desirable addition to the pantry shelves.

As to methods of canning fruit there has come up of late years, a diversity of opinion. Some housewives use a method by which the fruit is packed in tin cans and sealed and cooked without further handling. But probably the majority of women still adhere to the old established method which calls for direct cooking before placing in the jars. Preserving can only be done in tin, glass, and jams and jellies the same.

First I am going to give you a table of syrups which I will refer to from time to time in canning recipes. These syrups are made by boiling the sugar and water together in the proportion given until the sugar has dissolved. Strain it through a fine sieve or cheese cloth before using.

CANNING TABLE FOR SYRUPS:

Syrup No. 1—Use 14 ounces to 1 gallon of water.

Syrup No. 2—Use 1 pound 14 ounces to 1 gallon of water.

Syrup No. 3—Use 3 pounds 8 ounces to 1 gallon of water.

Syrup No. 4—Use 5 pounds 8 ounces to 1 gallon of water.

Syrup No. 5—Use 6 pounds 13 ounces to 1 gallon of water.

The syrup for canned berries is made out of the berry juice instead of water.

Among the earlier fruits which should receive attention are cherries. They make a very pretty as well as delicious preserve.

CANNED CHERRIES

RECIPE NO. 1383

The large black and sweet white cherries are usually packed unpitted, while the reverse is true of acid cherries. When cherries are pitted they present a better appearance and some people prefer the distinctive flavor which the pit gives to the product when not removed. When cherries are to be canned whole they should be blanched in very hot water for half a minute. This will soften the fruit slightly and keep it from splitting. Then drop the cherries in a cool syrup and they will plump considerably. Then pack in jars when cold. For sour cherries use Syrup No. 4, and for sweet use Syrup No. 3. Process one quart jars for 20 minutes.

SPICED CURRANTS

RECIPE NO. 1384

Spiced currants make a very acceptable relish with meat. Stem and wash the currants and cook quickly. Let all boil and skim. Replace on stove; add sugar in proportion of ¾ of a cup of sugar to 1 of the cooked fruit, add also a table spoonful of whole cloves, a couple of sticks of broken cinnamon, and a few allspice to each quart of currants. Let cook gently for 15 minutes. Pour into jars and seal while very hot.

BLACKBERRY JAM

RECIPE NO. 1385

Blackberries make a very good jam, though some people object to the seeds. Try mixing, in equal parts, blackberries and blueberries. Put berries into the preserving kettle, cover with sugar and let stand all night. After berries are heated through on the stove, so much juice will collect that it is wise to remove some of it. Skim carefully, take out juice, leaving enough to keep the fruit from scorching. This juice should be put into a small preserving kettle, brought to a boil, skimmed carefully, boiled again and sugar added in the proportion of 1 cup of sugar to 1 one juice. Let boil again and put in either jars or bottles. This juice will be found very nice for pudding sauce and can also be used to color icings. When the blackberries and blueberries are cooked into a thick jam, add sugar in proportion of half a cup of sugar to a cup of the cooked fruit. This jam is particularly good as a filling for tarts or fruit pies in Winter.

PICKLED WATERMELON RECIPE NO. 1388

While on the subject of sweet pickles, watermelon rind makes a very rich and delicious sweet pickle. Cut rind into pieces convenient for packing in jars. Prepare vinegar as for pickled peaches except add to sugar 2 tablespoons of cloves, 2 or 3 sticks of cinnamon, a few allspice and a tablespoon of mace. When this has boiled together add watermelon rind and cook gently until thoroughly soft. All these sweet pickles keep better if they are heated to a boil for a final time just before placing in jars.

CANNED BEETS RECIPE NO. 1390

Beets used for canning should be of uniform deep-red color throughout. The "Detroit" is the best variety of beets for canning. For quality, only young, tender beets should be canned. Sort, putting uniform sizes together and steam for 20 minutes or boil until ¾ cooked, to loosen the skins. Do not allow cold water to tough them after they are cooked, as it is apt to cause them to lose their color. Peel and pack whole the beets which average 1 inch in diameter; those above 2 inches are cut into slices. Cover the beets in the cans with clear hot water. The flavor of the finished product is better if no seasoning is added during the canning. Process the quart jars from 1 to 2 hours.

Tune in for the baseball scores at 7:30 each evening direct from the office of the Boston Evening American through Station WNAC.

INDOOR ANTENNA (Lesson No. 6.)

With many of the recent sets the manufacturers claim that an indoor antenna will give satisfactory results. To this end, several types of indoor antennae have been put on the market.

An indoor antenna which will give excellent results may be made by taking some ordinary flexible lamp cord, untwisting it, and tacking the wire along the moulding of your sitting room. If there are metal ceilings nearby, keep it at least two feet away from them. The length may be anywhere from ten to thirty feet, and no insulators are necessary. Lightning arresters are not required when using such an arrangement.

Many persons who are not going away for an extended vacation are interested in short excursions of a day or two that can be taken from Boston. One of the most delightful of these will be the round trip to New York via the Fall River line Saturday and Sunday next at the low rate of $5 for the round trip. The excursion, which has been arranged with a view to the non-interruption of working hours, leaves at 2 p. m., Standard Time, from the South Station on Saturday afternoon, arriving in New York at 5 a. m. Sunday, and returns at 5 p. m. the same day, arriving Monday at 6:30 a. m.

The Plymouth of the Fall River line, which will make the trip, is one of the largest steamers plying the water of Long Island Sound. There will be dancing, orchestral concerts and special dinners and buffet breakfasts at a very low rate.

A visit to Niagara Falls on July 11 can be made for $10 for the round trip. Special coach leaves South Station at 4:40 p. m. Saturday, arriving back in Boston Monday morning at 6:15. This gives the tourist the opportunity of spending a day at the Falls.

On Monday next there will be a special excursion to Provincetown on the steamer Dorothy Bradford, leaving Long wharf at 9:30 a. m. daylight time. The Provincetown trip is extremely popular, not only with clubs, social organizations, lodges, Sunday school classes, but with small individual parties.

For Tuesday, July 14, the New Haven Railroad has announced another special excursion to Oak Bluffs and Nantucket. Round trip to Oak Bluffs $2.50; to Nantucket $3. Train leaves South Station at 6 a. m., Standard Time, and arrives back at 6:15 p. m.

On Wednesday, July 15, the historic old town of Plymouth will be the objective of a low-rate outing; $1 for the round trip. Plymouth has many attractions for the people of Boston and a visit enriches the visitor as few other spots can. The train leaves the South Station at 8 a. m., arrives at Plymouth at 9:15 a. m., and is due on the return trip to Boston at 4:15 p.m.

On Thursday, July 16, another excursion to Newport will be given at $2 for the round trip. A special train leaves the South Station at 8:30 a. m. Returning, the train leaves Newport at 5 p. m., and is due in Boston at 7 p. m., Standard time.

Pickwick Disaster Must Not Be "Hushed Up"

The People of Boston Demand All the Facts and Drastic Action in Their Light

In the wake of the most disgraceful disaster that ever humiliated the people of Boston comes "the cold, gray dawn" of the "official" morning after.

To assume that the citizens of Massachusetts resident in her Capital City can be tempted or intimidated into forgetting or forgiving the crime against the public which was exposed by the collapse of the building that housed the so-called "Pickwick Club," would be to abandon faith in the fitness of the people of the oldest Commonwealth in the western world for self-government.

Any such assumption would be, as the Boston Evening American believes, a wanton injury to the people of Boston and to their fellow citizens of Massachusetts, a fatuous insult to their intelligence, a cowardly and indefensible injustice to the sovereign citizenry of Massachusetts.

Deep down in the heart of the true American dwells the earnest desire to be fair at all times and in all places to his fellow man. Belief in this fact is the corner-stone of faith in representative government. To this rule this newspaper is convinced that the people of Boston are no exception.

Theirs is the public sentiment which demands that all the agencies at their command shall probe to the bottom of Boston's most disgraceful disaster—probe for all the facts that will throw any light upon the cause of this crime, probe for all the facts that will throw any light upon the responsibility for this outrage, probe for all the facts that will throw any light upon any changes in men or measures, in public officials, or in provisions of the law, that will save the City of Boston from a repetition, soon or late, of the damning indictment against the brand of burlesque on government that has been exposed to the eyes of the outside world by this crime against the Boston public, with its resultant loss of life and its continuing jeopardy to life.

For the jeopardy continues. No assurance is yet forthcoming that any steps have yet been taken to purge officialdom of each and every public servant whose presence on the payroll of the city, the county or the State is a menace to life and property—a menace either by reason of any public servant's incompetency to perform his duties under the law, or of his faithlessness to his official trust under the law.

How many other buildings in the City of Boston today, recently damaged by fire, are a jeopardy to life?

How many other buildings in the City of Boston, now under repair, are a jeopardy to life?

How many other buildings in the City of Boston, in need of repair, are a jeopardy to life?

How many other buildings in Boston, now going up, will when completed, be a jeopardy to life?

If "Government is Protection"—Protection for the People—the people of Boston are entitled to an answer to these questions.

What are the officials of the City of Boston, the County of Suffolk and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts doing today to get the answers to these questions?

What is the Boston Chamber of Commerce, with its many committees, doing today to get an answer to these questions?

What are the underwriters engaged in business in the City of Boston doing today to get an answer to these questions?

What are the bankers and the business men of Boston, the architects, builders and contractors—the big and the little in the world of finance and business—doing today to get an answer to these questions?

Who is there in the whole city today, who will have the impudence to contend that the plain people of Boston are not entitled to an answer to each and every one of these questions at the earliest possible moment?

That the jellyfish, the incompetents and the crooks that sometimes creep into officialdom, and the greedy and the grafters that plague the world of honest business are gambling upon what they hope is the "short memory" of the Boston public this newspaper has not the slightest doubt.

That those who are in any way blameworthy legally or morally, officially or politically, for the sort of building in which the ill-fated "night club" was doing business, or for the sort of business it was engaged in, will try to chloroform public sentiment throughout the length and breadth of the City of Boston this newspaper has not the slightest doubt.

But "eternal Vigilance is the price of Liberty"—it is also the best safeguard against the chloroforming of the public sentiment of a great city whose every honest citizen has been wronged by this latest and indefensible and most disgraceful disaster.

"In this and like communities," said Abraham Lincoln, "Public Sentiment is Everything. With Public Sentiment nothing can fail, without it nothing can succeed."

Because this newspaper believes that these words of Lincoln apply with full force, here and now, to the people of Boston and their fellow citizens throughout Massachusetts, this newspaper persists in the confidence that the Pickwick Club disaster will neither be forgotten nor forgiven by the people of Boston, who share with their fellow citizens of the Commonwealth, the sovereignty of this their home and their capital city. The people themselves will prevent the politicians of either party from "hushing up" this crime against the Boston public.

Boston's most disgraceful disaster has outraged Public Opinion and aroused Public Sentiment, in every one of the city's twenty-two wards.

To keep Public Opinion informed and to keep Public Sentiment aroused becomes therefore the imperative duty of every honest resident of the City and of every loyal citizen of the Commonwealth.

In this Public Service the Boston Evening American possesses alike the Will and the Freedom to do its full part. In this Public Service this newspaper welcomes the co-operation of its readers.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

OH, woman, woman! What hath become of thine infinite variety? For verily, verily, thou didst once possess as many lights and facets as a diamond.

But now past hast become as a piece of window glass, flat and easy to SEE through!

Once, weren't thou as full of color as a Roman sash, and of surprises as a dime novel; but now, art thou as an American table d'hote, whereof the soup and the chicken and the pie are all of ONE flavor.

Behold, once thou wast of many types, and all of them endearing.

Lo, there was the dangerous and alluring widow.

And the fascinating and mysterious Divorcee.

And the Snappy Bachelor Girl.

And the sweet and blushing Debutante.

And the spicy Chorus Girl.

And the romantic Trained Nurse.

And the tender Clinging Vine.

But, now, alas! all women are as one woman—and that one a jazz baby!

Their hair-cut is always the haircut of the flapper—and all their speech is the jargon of the "college cutie."

One woman's skirts are as short as another's, and one woman's lips are as red as another's.

One woman's wit is as slangy as another's—and one woman's ways are as frivolous as another's.

One damsel saith: "I dare you!" and another saith: "HOW dare you!" but in the end they can both be kissed!

And there is no variety and no novelty and no mystery and no surprise IN them.

Yet, alas, all his life a man goeth seeking "something different!"

And Solomon himself would not have made happy brides of seven hundred women had they all been JUST ALIKE!

SELAH!

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Grammar is the logic of speech, even as logic is the grammar of reason. —Coleridge.

Solid love, whose root is virtue, can no more diet than virtue itself. —Erasmus.

If we give way to our passions we do but gratify ourselves for the present to our future disquiet.

Poetry is the blossom and fragrance of all human knowledge, human thoughts, emotions and language.—Coleridge.

Some pretences daunt and discourage us, while others raise us to a brisk assurance.

We can never be grieved for their miseries who are thoroughly wicked, and have thereby justly called their calamities on themselves.—Dryden.

* * *

Happy it were for us all if we bore prosperity as well and wisely as we endure adverse fortune.

* * *

The genius, wit and spirit of a nation are discovered in its proverbs. —Lord Bacon.

A good pear or apple costs no more time or pains to rear than a poor one; so I would have no work or art, no speech or action or friend but the best. —Emerson.

* * *

Though we travel the world over to find the beautiful, we must carry it with us, or we find it not. —Emerson.

* * *

Artists may produce excellent designs, but they will avail little unless the taste of the public is sufficiently cultivated to appreciate them. —George C. Mason.

Rent in Arrears

Helping Hand Editor:

My husband is ill with rheumatic fever and I am in arrears with my rent and also store bill. My boys, 9 and 2½, and girls 5 years, and baby 8 months old, need clothing and shoes badly. I wear size 38, shoes 6½. I will be so thankful to any kind reader who will help us out of our difficulties as my husband will be unable to work for some time. A. D. S.

Asks for Old Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

My husband has been out of work for nine weeks and my rent is six weeks in arrears. I got a notice from my landlord saying if I did not pay by the 15th of this month, we would have to move so you see I am up against it with five children, not one able to work, boys 12, 9 and 4, girls 10 and baby 14 months old. Any old clothes for the children will be appreciated, as I am handy with the needle. But the rent is what worries me the most and I hope someone will help me out. My case may be investigated. E. E. B.

Much Sickness

Helping Hand Editor:

I have had a lots of sickness and a hard time to get along. My husband is only working a few days a week and he needs pants, size 40, and shirts 15½. There are seven of us and there is no money left to buy clothes after getting the food we need. I also need sheets and pillowcases and will appreciate any help. MRS. J. S.

Hard to Get Along

Helping Hand Editor:

I have eight dear children and have a hard time to get along. My husband has just started to work steady and we are all in need of furniture and clothes. We only have one chair and a stool and that is almost gone. We have a poor home, as all my husband earns goes to pay bills and feed us. My children's ages are boys 15, 6 and 4, girls 11, 9, 7, 2 and baby 7 months old. I hope some kind readers will help us. My husband also needs clothes. MRS. B. K.

Others in Need

Mrs. L. E. N., will give some kind elderly woman a good home.

Mrs. Albert R. D., who has just gotten over an operation and has four small children, would appreciate a long coat, size 40.

E. A. V., girl, sixteen, writes she can get a position in about a week, but has no clothes. Sisters, nine and six, also are in need of clothing. Father has been sick and needs her help badly.

Mrs. A. C. B. appeals for a chauffeur job for her husband, but he will do anything, as they have no money. Girl, twelve, and boy, nine, are greatly in need of clothing. Also expects the stork soon and haven't a thing ready for it.

Mrs. L. D. would appreciate clothing, size 46, and for daughter, 38. She is too old to work and daughter is sickly and can't work.

Mrs. C. S would appreciate a suit for her husband, size 40, and clothing for boys, five and three. Mother of a large family, and husband in poor health.

Mrs. J. J. L., whose husband is a wounded war veteran, appeals for some furniture for kitchen and bedroom, also some dishes. Has two children and finds it hard to get along.

Mrs. M. E. L. will give a good home to a little girl four to six years of age. Orphan preferred.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

TODAY a long-forgotten smile upon an old friend's face came back to comfort me awhile with all its wonted grace. Today a wistful flower that grew upon my windowsill brought to my hungry eyes anew a wind-swept emerald hill. The little, unregarded things, how strangely they return across the years on silent wings from out the past's dim bourne! How rich life grows when memories can bring such priceless train, and in the wake of thoughts like these joy blossoms once again!
These fragile things are threads that spin the fabric of our years, when age's eminence we win, beyond youth's hopes and fears. We prize the unregarded smile, the half-forgotten sigh that come to lend, a little while, the bliss of years gone by.

NORWEGIAN SAILORS AND THEIR CHURCH

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A MEETING was recently held in New York at which the Norwegian Seamen's Church of Brooklyn was discussed.

This is a peculiar institution. It seems to be more than a church, or rather, it seems to be a church in the full, modern sense of the idea.

It stresses service. It is not so particularly concerned with people's ideas and opinions, with their creeds and notions, as it is in helping the class of people who need help.

The sailor is a rover. He has no home ties that bind him, as a rule. And many sailors are Norwegian, or some kind of Scandinavian.

This has always been a sea-going and sea-loving race, and now the hand of service is stretched out by society to help them.

The Norwegian Church in Brooklyn has been fifty years engaged in successful work and has lately been increasing by great strides. Its work not only includes work done by Norwegian sailors, but a constant visiting of the hospitals to people of all countries.

It cares for the shipwrecked. It is a postoffice where the lost and found are looked after.

It has outgrown its old quarters in Brooklyn and is now engaged in a campaign for a new building. This is sadly needed and there are few works of society that better deserve support.

To many sailors the Seamen's Church is the goal first sought when they strike New York. These men come from every part of New York and from Yonkers and Bayonne.

They amount to over half a million visitors a year. They are mostly Norwegian, Swedish and Danish, and a full quarter of them are American citizens who have taken out their first papers.

They come from the four corners of the earth and the Church to most of them is their only address.

COULD THE AIR CRUSH A BUILDING?

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"An acquaintance asked me this question: If the air was extracted entirely from a building, would it collapse? He apparently does not understand the functions of force and matter. Will you oblige with your opinion?—M. F. M."

IT would depend upon the strength of the walls and upon the structure of the building as to form, bracing, etc. I doubt if many realize the enormous force of air pressure. The force of the greatest hurricane is small in comparison.

About the highest pressure calculated for storm winds is fifty pounds to the square foot, and that, too, for "an immense hurricane." Some authorities consider this exaggerated, and cut the figures down to from ten to fourteen pounds for winds of sixty miles an hour. The pressure varies as the square of the velocity. At one mile per hour the pressure is .003 pound.

Now, compare with that the normal pressure of the atmosphere, which amounts to 14.7 pounds per square inch, or more than a ton per square foot! That is the pressure that would be brought to bear upon the walls of a building the interior to which was entirely exhausted of air.

Of course, a building could be constructed capable of withstanding such a pressure, and perhaps most well-built buildings, strongly braced within, actually would withstand it, although their windows and doors would be crushed in.

If the vacuum were created outside instead of inside the building, which many think practically occurs at the centre of a tornado, the resisting power of most structures would be less effective than against a force pressing inward.

There are reports of buildings having their walls blown out by the pressure of the contained air as the core of the storm passed over. In such cases it is not likely that there was a complete vacuum created outside, even for a moment, for a diminution of the pressure to the extent of one-half or three-quarters would no doubt suffice to cause the mischief.

It seems to be a perpetual mystery to some persons why, if the air presses upon us with a force of nearly fifteen pounds per square inch of surface, we do not feel it, and feel it very severely. As one lady said: "Why, I should think we couldn't move a hand!"

But, my dear madam, a fish living in water a hundred feet deep is pressed upon by the water with a force three times as great, or forty-five pounds per square inch, and yet is entirely unhampered in its movements and perfectly comfortable because its body is full of liquids which distribute the pressure so that there is as much within as without.

So we, living in the atmosphere, have air pressure distributed through our bodies, and so nicely accommodated to the peculiarities of our anatomy that we are entirely unaware of any pressure, unless we suddenly change the conditions, as for instance by going up in a balloon, or rapidly climbing a high mountain, when we find ourselves temporarily deafened by the pressure on the inside of our ear-drums exceeding for a while (until it naturally adjusts itself) the opposing pressure of the outside.

The pressure of the atmosphere decreases as we mount higher above the earth's surface because there is a lessened weight of air above.

At a height of about four and a half miles you would find the atmospheric pressure only half as much as at the surface. If you go up very slowly the pressures in the body progressively adjust themselves to the decreasing pressure without.

But if you should shoot up in a second or two to a height of five miles the consequences might be mortal. Your experience would then resemble that of some of the deep-sea fishes, accustomed to dwell where the pressure is excessively high and which, when brought to the surface, "explode."

Liquid water and gaseous air are very different in many of their physical properties, but they are alike in that with both the pressure increases with depth and is distributed equally in all directions. A balloon is supported by the same law of buoyancy that floats a ship.

ONCE-OVERS

WHY BORE OTHER PEOPLE TO DEATH BY TALKING ABOUT YOUR OWN TROUBLES AND AILMENTS?

Don't tell your troubles so much to others.

There is no bore worse than the one who has real or imaginary ailments and is always complaining about them.

Few escape from aches or pains during life and most persons take them as a matter of course.

The more you talk of your afflictions the greater they become in your own mind. You just keep yourself thinking about them.

But sympathy is sweet and you want to be appreciated as a martyr. You don't like to be called a martyr. But what else are you seeming to call out from your friends if it is not that sort of sympathy?

You might be surprised if you knew what your most intimate friends are bearing in silence, what really serious troubles they have which they never mention aloud.

Buck up. Don't be such a bore that you drive away your friends.

Don't cause your friends to think you are a weakling of no grit and no courage.

Thousands are bearing burdens much greater with a smile on the face and cheerfulness in the heart.
